'I closed my eyes and waited to die'

Patty Hearst: Captors made me their sex slave

By IRVING PAAR

Patty Hearst, the newspaper heiress who was kidnapped by the terrorist Symbionese Revolutionary Army (SLA), has revealed the horrible night she was forced to become the "bride" and love slave of one of her cruel captors.

For nearly two months after her Feb. 4, 1974 abduction, Patty was terrorized and kept locked in a tiny closet by the renegade band.

In her book "Every Secret Thing," (Doubleday, $17.95), she tells how she pretended to be in sympathy with her jailers in order to survive their horrible threats, and physical and sexual abuse.

One day SLA member Gelina (real name Angela Atwood), came to Patty and whispered a chilling message.

"Cujo (real name William Wolfe) wants to get it on with you," she said.

"We feel more like you're one of us now. And part of being in a cell (a terrorist band) is being comradely with the people in the cell."

What followed was a bizarre wedding night ritual, Patty said.

She was let out of her closet and given only her third bath in two months. Gelina shampooed her hair and rubbed it and gave her some clean clothes.

Then like the mother of the bride, Gelina gave her a first night gift. She explained that other members of the group had to hide from the police and could not go out, they resigned to live here with each other.

Patty was then put back in her tiny closet.

"Cujo followed me into the closet," she said. "The door was shut, we took our clothes off, and he did his thing and left."

Patty said the only thing worse would be to have sex with Field Marshall Cinque, the leader of the group whose real name was Donald DeFreeze.

But she was not spared this horror.

Earlier in her captivity, Cinque had come to her closet and terrorized her because she had disagreed with another member of the group.

Threatening her in a chilling voice, he openly made his meaning clear by brutally pinching the flesh of her breasts and thighs.

Three days after her "honeymoon" of terror with Cujo, Gelina delivered another horrible message.

"Cinque wants you."

Patty said: "I tried to keep my face expressionless, to hide my revulsion."

Shortly afterwards, Cinque ordered the closet and ordered Patty to strip.

"And he made me," said Patty. "I lay there like a rag doll, my mind a million miles away. It was all so unreal and then it was over.

"I said to myself ... 'Well, you're still alive.'"

Patty gave us to detail how she led the group into believing that she wanted to join them and how they forced her to drive a getaway car after the robbery of a San Francisco bank.

And, she reveals why she hid out as a captive for the next year, she had been brainwashed by the terrorists into believing the FBI wanted her dead.

Heiress Patty Hearst after her arrest for bank robbery. She claims she was a helpless sex slave during her captivity.

Helpless holdup victim miraculously survives cold-blooded execution

By DICK DONOVAN

A kill-crazed gunman jammed the muzzle of his .38 revolver against Lawrence Trexler's head and squeezed the trigger, sending a bullet crashing into his young victim's skull.

But, incredibly, Trexler did not die from his horrifying wound.

The bullet is still lodged behind his throat, but the 27-year-old Cleveland, Ohio, gas station attendant miraculously suffered no serious brain damage.

"It very definitely was a miracle," Trexler told The NEWS. "I never thought a man could get shot in the head and survive. But I did, thank God."

Trexler's terrifying brush with death came as he closed the gas station where he worked. He had just turned off the lights when he heard a tap at the window.

"A man was standing about four feet from me with a gun in his hand," Trexler recalled. "He told me to open the door."

The man, who was masked, demanded all the money in the station and Trexler handed over about $200.

Then the gunman ordered the frightened attendant to get a rope, but all he could find was a string mop with which he was ordered to tie his feet. The gunman zipped out a telephone cord, tied Trexler to a chair and gagged him.

"Suddenly he turned the gun toward me," Trexler said. "I didn't expect to get shot. I had cooperated completely."

As the cold-blooded holdup man pressed his revolver against Trexler's forehead only an inch above his eyes, a flood of terror swept through the helpless victim's body.

"I remember thinking, 'This is it! My life is over!' I closed my eyes and waited to die," Trexler said. "I really didn't want to see the barrel, see the gun go off.

"I heard the shot and felt the jolt. It jerked my head backward. I yelled, 'Dear God! Help me!'

"It was dark for a moment. Strangely, I didn't hurt any four. There were no flashes of my past life or anything like that.

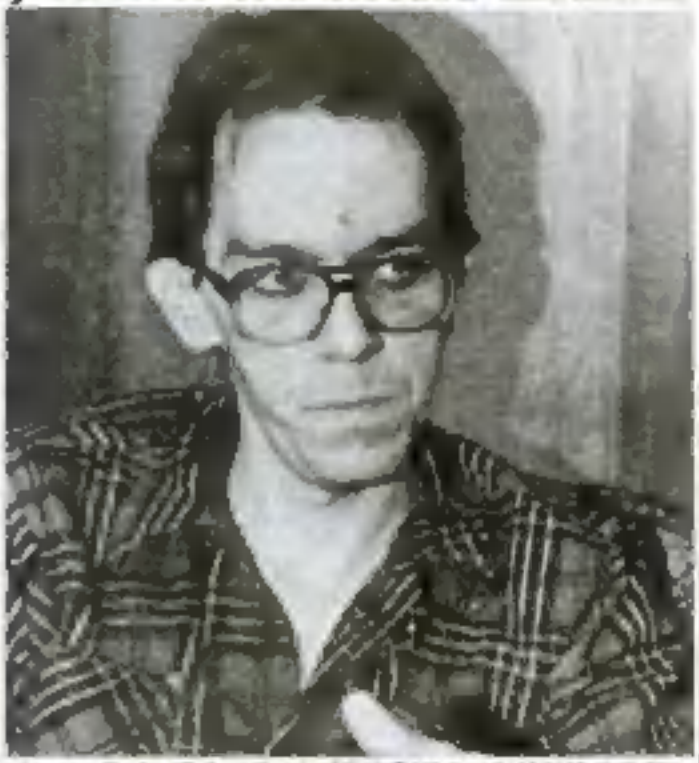
"After a few seconds, I opened my eyes. I couldn't believe I was still alive. I looked down and saw a pool of blood at my feet. I felt very little pain.

"The only thing I could think was, 'If you don't get help quick, you'll bleed to death.'

"After a while I managed to work my feet free enough to walk. There's a pizza shop across from the station, and I went there for help. The people there sent for an ambulance."

Dr. Peter N. Tsoras, the neurosurgeon who treated Trexler, said the bullet hit his cranium and took a downward path, tearing off the tip of the lower part of the brain. The bullet stopped behind Trexler's throat.

"The doctor said one of the bullet had gone a centimeter in either direction, I would be dead," Trexler said.



Lawrence Trexler still shows the scar of the bullet that crashed into his skull after he was shot at point-blank range by a crazed gunman who robbed his gas station.

Psychic's chilling vision leads rescuers to injured crash victim

By JOE BERGER

Dean Winkler lay close to death for three terrible days before a psychic's chilling vision led rescuers to the twisted wreckage of his car in a remote ravine.

Incredibly, psychic Randy Youmans didn't know the badly injured man — but he directed his family and friends to the crash scene just seconds after she heard Dean's name for the first time.

"I've found the greater the human need, the stronger the vision — and in this case, the need was tremendous," Randy, 33, told The NEWS.

"It's a miracle," said Dean's mother, Mrs. Peggie Ballard. "There's no way I could ever explain how Mr. Youmans did what he did, but I thank God it happened."

Dean's nightmare began as he drove along a narrow, winding road outside Kansas City, Mo.

"I'd been with friends celebrating a promotion," recalled the 27-year-old department store employee.

"I was driving over to my girlfriend's house. I'd had the flu and had worked 12 hours that day, and I guess I drifted off to sleep.

"The next thing I knew, I woke up in the hospital and everybody was telling me how lucky I was to be alive."

Dean doesn't recall the three days he spent unconscious and bleeding in the tangled wreckage of his sports car, blistered by the savage sun during the day and lashed by freezing winds at night.

But Dean's parents and four brothers, and his scores of friends, will never forget the horror of those endless days.

When the cheerful, easygoing Dean failed to show up at his girlfriend's house, his buddies and co-workers launched a desperate, round-the-clock search for him.

Nearly 300 searchers scoured the country roads the young man had traveled, unsuccessfully scurrying through thick brush and dense woods.

But Dean's car had careened into a tree and then rolled into a gully so thick with brush it was hidden from view.

After two days, one of Dean's friends suggested the family call on a psychic for help.

They turned to Mr. Randy Youmans, whose name had been in a local paper after he helped police solve several crimes in the Kansas City area.

"I began to see things about the man," the psychic said. "And I felt things, too. The first thing I felt was his heartbeat and I knew it was extremely slow . . . that he was close to dying."

The psychic told the family that Dean was in the wreckage of a small green car in a brush-clogged ravine. He said the injured man was wearing boots, blue pants and a plaid shirt.

But more importantly, Randy described the site of the crash so vividly that rescuers rushed to the scene.

They pulled Dean from a tangle of brush and twisted steel and rushed him to a hospital for emergency surgery.

Rushed, married and the father of a baby girl, said he's been performing psychic feats for 10 years, but doesn't consider his power a special gift or talent.

"I've just practiced using the mental ability that we all have, but most of us never learn to use," he said. "I'm not always totally accurate either, but I guess sometimes I do pretty well."

Dean said: "I know I'd never have made it without some help from above — and I guess I got a lot of help from right here on Earth, too."

A psychic's chilling vision led rescuers to Dean Winkler. Winkler had lain in the crashed wreckage of his car for three days.

She's America's oldest schoolmarm

By JOE BERGER

Lillian Chapin has been a devoted schoolmarm for 80 years and she's still teaching English to newly arrived immigrants — even though she just turned 100. That makes her the oldest teacher in America.

"Teaching's been my life and I'll help students as long as I'm able," the sprightly oldster told The NEWS.

"I thank God I've been able to still right along, to keep doing the one thing that's put so much meaning into my life."

Lillian Sears run a daily class for 30 foreign-born adults at Los Angeles' Ilier Ish a to give special counseling to the students having the toughest time learning the language.

"Miss Chapin's wonderful," said Pua Tuiasosopo, 32, who attends the program. "She's an overprotective and caring that people work hard to pursue her. And she's sharp as a tack — no slowing down at all.

"It's hard to believe she's 100 years old when you work with her every day."

Both President Reagan and California Gov. Jerry Brown sent letters to Lillian on her 100th birthday. But she's a little baffled that anyone would make a fuss over her.

"People act like I'm the oldest person in the world," she said. "Everyone's been very, but there are thousands of people older than I am.

Lillian was born on a Kansas farm in 1881. She walked two miles every morning to a one-room schoolhouse where she was one of three students in her class.

She got a master's degree and taught high school in Kansas before moving to Los Angeles in 1920. For 30 years, the soft-spoken woman taught Chinese children to speak English.

"Hundreds of my students write me to get their citizenship, and I feel like I contributed to that," she said. "It makes me feel good."

Lillian never married. But she said she doesn't know why.

"I guess I was so busy with my students I never stopped to take the time," she laughed.

Lillian has always been very careful about her health and she credits that — the reason she's lived so long.

"I never drank or smoked — I just never wanted to," she said.

Maybe that's why I'm still around. Or maybe it's because I just never died.

At 99, Lillian climbed rugged Mount Wilson in southern California. "Now I can barely shuffle a few blocks," she chuckled.

She's spent most of her life in Los Angeles, but recently the big city has taken its toll.

"Someone has run up and taken my purse away. I've fallen down," she said. "And they keep breaking into my house and taking things.

"I would hate to leave while I was still of value here, but maybe they're going to drive me out."

But that wouldn't be so bad — I'm still a country girl at heart."

And she certainly hasn't forgotten her days on the farm. Miss Chapin grows her own vegetables and flowers — and even does the housework.

The amazing Lillian Chapin is still in the classroom — after an astounding 80 years on the job.

100-year-old still teaches the three Rs

Kind family saves buffalo from angry owner's bullet — and keeps him as a pet

Buford the buffalo was looking down the barrel of a gun — when an incredibly kind family came to his rescue.

Buford was part of a herd of buffalo headed for the butcher when he gave the owner the slip.

Happy here, the exhausted beast showed up at Ron and Gloria Gravatt's horse farm in Prince William County, Va.

That's when Buford's angry owner arrived with a shotgun.

"He walked up and said the buffalo was one of his herd and he was going to kill it," said Gloria.

"We said, 'Well, you're not going to shoot this one.'"

The Gravatts' startled children and a herd of concerned neighbors gathered around the pooled buffalo — and the gun-toting owner agreed to sell Buford to the family.

Man finally gets diploma — at 84

Incredible Steve Cleghy has fulfilled his life-long dream when he got a high school diploma — at the amazing age of 84.

"This is what I've been waiting for for years," the proud great sad. Steve's parents forced him to quit school at an early age — and go to work to help his poor family.

The determined man then became a successful bank-keeper, raised a family and retired in Winter Park, Fla.

It was then he headed back to class and got his diploma — the oldest graduate in Orange County history!

Mushrooms called a miracle food

Mushrooms are a miracle food that could end agonizing hunger around the world and even prevent cancer, top scientists say.

"Mushrooms have enormous potential as a nutritious food source capable of feeding millions," said British botanist Frank Hayes.

Researchers also found startling evidence that mushroom extract slows the growth of cancerous tumors in mice.

"Survival was significantly longer in the treated mice than in the untreated mice," said Dr. Kanichi Mori, a researcher in Tokyo.

Saloon sells drinkers a 'tipsy-test'

Now you can give yourself a "tipsy-test" with an amazing new blood alcohol kit — before you leave the bar.

For just $3, a tavern in Hallowell, Maine, sells consumers the easy-to-use device.

If the incredible tester says they've had one too many — they can avoid a nasty time with police by calling a cab!

Why I married a rock star

TV's cute Valerie Bertinelli reveals the surprising truth

TV's gawky-goody gal Valerie Bertinelli says her fans were stunned when she wed a rock star — but they'd be shocked to learn the real truth about her hubby Eddie Van Halen.

Rock musicians are supposed to be drugged-out, sex mad wildmen, but Eddie, star of the Van Halen band, is actually a mild-mannered, shy young man who likes a quiet, simple home life.

"Edward is definitely not your typical, drug-crazed rock star," Valerie told The NEWS.

"I know people are skeptical about us. They think we're attracted to each other because we're opposites.

"But that's not entirely true. Eddie is a sweet, old-fashioned guy who looks at life the way I do. We both have old-fashioned morals and we both have the same goals in life.

"We want successful individual careers, but we also want a great marriage."

Instead of the jet-setting, glitzy world of the rock star, Eddie and Valerie live a very low-key, almost reclusive existence.

By PATRICIA HERMAN

"We're both shy people and we don't enjoy socializing very much," said the "One Day at a Time" sugar and spice girl.

"When we're home, we just enjoy being together. We live in a beautiful house in the Hollywood Hills where we have all the diamonds we want.

"I cook dinner and Eddie does carpentry work around the house. We're really happy together, so I wish people would stop wondering about us."

Many of Valerie's fans had thought Eddie was definitely the wrong choice for her mate and when she did marry him they thought it was for one of publicity alone.

But Valerie says Eddie fills the bill of the "dream man" she had dreamed of.

"My parents have an old-fashioned marriage full of love and laughter and it always made me look forward to having the same thing," she said.

"I always knew I wanted to marry a guy with whom I could share love, friendship and a wonderful life.

"When I first met Eddie something clicked. We got along fabulously.

"I knew he was the right man for me. He's fulfilling the dreams and visions I had as a teenager. He's a wonderful husband, loving and devoted."

Eddie was not Valerie's first love. When she was 18, she fell for the dark, good looks of young actor Scott Baio. Columbia Scott won a good star on "One Day at a Time" and Valerie was convinced they would marry one day.

But like many Hollywood romances between a famous star and a struggling unknown, the affair ended in heartbreak.

"I loved Scott," said the 21-year-old actress. "I would have married him in a minute if he had asked me. But it just wasn't the right time for us.

"He was too busy trying to get his career established, and I was already well known as an actress.

"Scott was always known as 'Valerie Bertinelli's boyfriend.'"

After Scott, brokenhearted Valerie dated more famous men like Dirk Benedict of "Battlestar Galactica" and Steven Spielberg, director of "Jaws."

But nothing clicked until she met Eddie.

"My life with Eddie is more important than my career. He matters more to me than anything else."

Eddie Van Halen is not a typical rock star, says Valerie Bertinelli of her hubby. She says her fans would be surprised if they knew what a quiet life they lead.

These private ears get paid $$ just to listen

"Big Al" and his two-gal staff are offering a tasty new service — for $15 they'll listen to anyone talk about anything for 30 minutes.

Their unique complaint department is called "Let's Talk" but it could be "Have Ear Will Listen." It's not as bizarre as it sounds. A lot of people have things they want to get off their chest without having to talk to someone they know.

That's why the Spectator Words... service collects $15 for the first 15 minutes and $25 for a full hour.

"We're not like a psychiatrist, psychologist or counselor," explained Big Al, who works with his staff of private ears, Anita and Cindy.

They refuse to reveal their real names, and the names of their clients.

"We give people the opportunity to sit down and be who they want to be for a half an hour," Big Al said. "We feel it helps them adjust much better to the world around them."

"Let's Talk" clients include teenagers who have troubles with their parents or are hooked on heroin or drugs, adults frustrated with their jobs, spouses at duels, and people with an interest in sex, so we won't point an accusing finger," explained Big Al, who works with his staff of private ears, Anita and Cindy.

"Let's Talk" clients include teenagers who have troubles with their parents or are hooked on heroin or drugs, adults frustrated with their jobs, spouses at duels, and people who just want to get something off their chest.

The staff mostly tries to listen sympathetically without giving advice.

But sometimes they can be of help.

"There was this 67-year-old man who wanted modern-day information on sex," recalled Big Al.

"He didn't know a thing about it. He'd been married for 50 years, and that takes alot of work to the old culture, old traditions. He made two visits. He came back the second time to clear up any questions he had about his and his wife's sex life.

Teen survives horror in the jaws of a huge ice crushing machine

By IRVING WALLACE

Teenager George Torres' leg was shredded in the grinding jaws of a huge ice crusher. But his devoted mom and doctors who performed a miracle of modern surgery say he will walk again!

Still, the plucky 16-year-old faces long months of healing and therapy before he recovers.

"It was a terrible nightmare for my son. But he is lucky to be alive," says George's step-father, Fred Sacrum.

"We will always be so very grateful for what the doctors did for him. But it will be a long, long time before he is well again. But he is a very brave boy."

Fred and his wife, Ignacia, kept a constant vigil at their son's bedside, waiting for him to regain consciousness after his long hours of grueling surgery.

"His first words when he woke up were, 'Mom will I ever walk again?' I said sure, you will. You will. But it will take time."

George's heart-sick mother has vowed not to leave her son's bedside until he is safely out of danger.

"I have read about the others who have been hurt like this — like George — and I have always prayed for them," she said. "Now I need everyone to pray for my little baby."

"I feel very grateful for what the hospital and the surgeons did for my son. It is a miracle that he is still alive and that he may someday walk again.

"Now, I wish I was in his place," she added, dabbing at the tears that streaked her tear-drained face. "I wish he was looking down at me instead of me looking down at him.

"I am his mother and he is my baby. Like any mother, I want to take all his pain away. I want to suffer the pain for my poor baby."

George's agonizing ordeal began when he was trapped in the huge ice crushing machine at the Raptor Packing plant where he worked part-time after school.

The grinding steel gear of the crusher all but ripped his leg off as he was hurled in an avalanche of freezing ice.

For minutes that seemed an eternity, George screamed in agony as the ice crusher chewed away at his imprisoned leg. When co-workers finally found him, he was near death.

The workers were unable to free the Queens, N.Y., boy and they called police.

"The kid must have been trapped in there for at least 15 minutes," said paramedic Gus Pappas. "When we got there, he was freezing."

Pappas said ice cubes are made in the top section of the machine. The cubes then drop into a hopper where a huge worm gear forces them through a crusher.

Plant officials said the machine shuts down when the access door is opened, and starts again when the door is closed.

"For some reason, the door opened accidentally and the motor turned on," said plant manager Peter Castellano.

Paramedics grabbed shovels and began clearing the ice away from the boy. A doctor came from a nearby hospital, and a Police Emergency Service rescue unit also raced to the scene. They used power saws and hydraulic jacks to cut and pry the machine apart and free George's leg.

The machine had ripped through all the muscles of his lower leg — they were torn free of the bone, Pappas said. "It was almost amputated."

Grief-stricken Ignacia Sacrum's face shows her motherly concern for her teenage boy, George, who narrowly escaped death in the jaws of an ice crushing machine.

Woman, 93, beats up cabbie and fights cops

Johanna Bruce is a 93-year-old woman who is willing and able to fight for what she believes is right — even if she has to bust a few heads to do it!

And that's just about what she did when she thought a cabbie's fare was unfair — the whacked him over the head with her cane. Then she took on a security guard, an apartment house manager and two Miami, Fla., cops.

"Oh, honey! It's been too much," she said as she downed a french and orange juice after her release. "Wait till you get to be in your 90s."

Cops said Johanna's troubles stemmed from her refusal to pay $20 to a cab driver who had taken her on a shopping trip.

She said she wasn't going to pay and whopped him with her cane," said officer Barry Savage, who added that he and his partner were hitten and scratched by Johanna when they were sent to quell the disturbance outside her apartment complex.

Police said the building's security guard and the manager were also assaulted by the 5-foot-6, 130-pound woman when they rushed to the rescue.

Savage and his partner disarmed Johanna, handcuffed her and hauled her off to jail.

But the judge considered her spotless record and released her without bond.

"It was the worst night of my life," she said. "In 93 years, I've never been in court. I'm not even sure why I was there. They didn't tell me."

Tough Johanna Bruce, 93, appears for a court hearing.

Woman's 7-hour swim of terror

By DICK DONOVAN

Pilot Kathy Maready crashed into the ocean, then won a "mirac-le" life and death battle for survival — with an incredible seven-hour swim!

And throughout her nightmare ordeal, the gutsy 22-year-old flight instructor fought off fatigue and fear with prayers and visions of her family

Kathy Maready, recovering from her exhausting swim for life, is visited in her hospital room by her dad, William, who says her survival was miraculous.

"I don't know how I did it," Kathy told The NEWS. "I'm really a very poor swimmer and I've always felt very uneasy, helpless in the water.

"But every time I got too tired to go on, I'd pray for strength and think about my parents and friends and how they would feel if I drowned. That kept me going."

Kathy's miraculous swim began while she was flying in her home in Hilton Head Island, S.C., from nearby Lady Island where she had taken a scuba class. It was a usually routine 15-minute hop that turned into disaster and brought her to the brink of death.

"It was about 10 p.m., and I was starting my descent from 1,500 feet," Kathy recalled.

"There was no moon and it was really pitch-dark out. When I reached 1,200 feet the engine just quit.

"There was no bang. No nothing. Just the sound of the air rushing over the plane. I knew I could reach land, but I thought I'd have a better chance with the water. I was only about two miles off the coast."

Kathy said she brought the sleek, single-engine Cessna jet lower over the water. Then stalled out and it hit above the surface.

"It was a strange landing," she said. "But I was lucky there wasn't any wind and the sea was relatively calm. I tried to get my seatbelt free for the crash. I knew we were losing me, but the plane went down in about 30 seconds.

"That's when I panicked. I hadn't expected the plane to go down so fast. I thought I'd have a little time. And as the plane sank beneath the surface, I saw the red beacon light make two revolutions. It was so eerie and I was terrified. It was the worst feeling I've ever had in my life."

Now alone in the water, surrounded by the darkness and the death-like calm of the sea, Kathy floated on her back and tried to overcome the icy fear that gripped her.

Then she began her desperate swim for life.

"I could just make out the outline of trees in the distance and I started swimming toward them," she said. "I would close my eyes and try to keep pace. I knew that if I stopped I would freeze, but every time I opened my eyes, I was way off course. Then I'd pray and think of my family and friends. Something that gave me the strength to keep going."

Throughout the seemingly endless night, Kathy called for resolve and determination to survive. Finally, after seven grueling hours in the water — her body screaming with pain and shaking violently from cold and exposure — she pulled herself on the beach of Pinckney Island.

"I couldn't stand up," she said. "I had to lie on the beach for an hour before I could move. The island is a wildlife refuge and no one was around.

"When the sun came up, I saw some moving boats passing, but they didn't hear my cries for help. So I started walking.

"At about 9 a.m., a wildlife ranger found me and carried me to an ambulance."

Kathy was hospitalized for a couple of days for exposure and released in her father, Bill.

"It's a miracle she's alive," he said. "She should have died after three hours in that water."

And Kathy agrees she's a very lucky young lady.

"It was a terrifying night. There was every emotion come out," she said. "I was laughing, crying, cursing and praying. But I had seven long hours to talk with the devil — or with God, I talked to God.

I just wasn't ready to die. There are too many things I want to do. I have life too much to go down to the bottom of the sea. Not without a fight!"

Hearts in shadow

The NEWS is proud to introduce a new feature we're sure you'll enjoy — a tender love story, told from beginning to end, in two or three weekly parts. This is the first installment of a three-part romance, the exciting story of a beautiful woman writer's dramatic love affair with a brilliant and powerful architect — a love that seems destined to end in heartbreak. You'll meet Vanessa Jameson and Brandt Hagen as they come alive on this page and follow them along destiny's course in the next two installments of "Hearts in Shadow." Other exciting, touching romances written for The NEWS by leading romance authors will follow.

By NICKI POTOPOULOS

Love Story — Your Weekly Romance

"Vanessa, you're here at last! Come on, let me introduce you to our host," Midge said excitedly, grabbing Vanessa Jameson at the door, giving her no time to recover from the awe she felt at entering Brandt Hagen's magnificent house on the river.

Vanessa was still gazing unbelievingly at the exquisite home furnished in a sophisticated style that reeked of good taste and money, when she got her first glimpse of the famous architect she had heard so much about.

Brandt, wearing a tan suede jacket, was standing across the crowded living room talking with other guests. Even from a distance, he exuded an animal power and masculinity. Vanessa couldn't take her eyes off him and when his amused, inquiring gaze locked with hers she felt a tingling shock jolt through her body.

Brandt's hazel eyes continued to inspect her from head to toe, and Vanessa reacted with a pang that she must fight back the conflicting emotions she felt stir within her.

She was still trying to regain her composure when Midge, her friend at the magazine where she had just started working, propelled her forward, almost directly into Brandt Hagen's arms!

"Brandt," Midge said, grasping the tall, handsome man's elbow as she drew the still shaken Vanessa closer to him. "this is Vanessa Jameson, the new reporter I was telling you about."

"She just came to the big city from Iowa, but's she simply lovely."

"Very," Brandt said, studying Vanessa coolly with a bemused grin as he shook her hand. His deep, magnetic voice made Vanessa's heart throb with anticipation.

If only he'd stop staring at me so intensely, stop making me feel so uneasy and helpless, she thought wildly. She was sure he could see how shaking

"So you're a fashion writer?" Brandt asked, his tone polite but tinged with a certain cynical amusement.

"Yes, I am," Vanessa replied. "In fact, I plan to do a piece on the cultural arts center you're designing for downtown Fort Lauderdale," Vanessa realized Midge hadn't slipped away at just that moment, leaving her alone with this disturbingly attractive man.

"Oh, you plan to do a story, do you?" Brandt grinned. "Well, I'm sorry to disappoint you young lady, but I'm not interested.

"I've had quite enough personal publicity and I'm not interested in having this project dissected and scrutinized before the plans are even completed — even by an attractive young woman like you."

His eyes held hers as he said strangely: 'Don't be surprised at anything that happens to you, Vanessa'

Brandt looked at her appraisingly. "So you're an idealist, and you're intelligent. I like that."

If this is his attempt at a compliment, Vanessa thought, I'm not impressed. I'm the one who's supposed to be studying him. It was because of the story, after all, that I agreed to come to this party. Who is he to be issuing patronizing compliments?

Vanessa fumed. She was beginning to resent this much-talked about architect more and more. Then she felt her face grow hot as she read the look in his eyes that said, "I know all about you, Vanessa, and I know why you're reacting to me this way."

The man was intruding into her thoughts, gauging her feelings, and Vanessa didn't like it.

She pulled her hand away from his abruptly and without another word walked outside to the patio. As she stood by the pool she tried to collect herself, willing her body to stop trembling.

For a long time, Vanessa stared as if hypnotized at the dappled shadows of the seagrape leaves reflected in the blue-green water of the pool, distorting her own image. The ever-changing reflections seemed to stir lazily on the water's surface . . . moving . . . constantly moving.

"No!" Vanessa cried, averting her eyes to shut her mind of the eerie impression the motion evoked in her. She refused to acknowledge what was happening to her, to face the truth of her attraction to Brandt Hagen, and the unsettling effect he had on her.

She glanced at the palm trees lining the waterway in the background, the lights dancing in the cool December breeze. How serene, she sighed, how beautiful it is.

She could have stayed there forever gazing at the moon glinted in the iron-edged harmony if Midge hadn't appeared.

"For God's sake, I've been looking all over for you, Vanessa," Midge said. "This is a party, not a retreat. Brandt wanted to talk to you. I'd say you made quite an impression on him."

Afraid Brandt was waiting by the door to ridicule her more, Vanessa tossed her head back straightened her shoulders and pretended an air of self-assurance as she slipped back into the party through a sliding glass door on the side. All her worry had been needless. Brandt didn't even notice her come in. He stood in the center of the room, absorbed in conversation with a tall, blonde woman dressed in a striking black and white ensemble that Vanessa was sure had a designer label. The woman's cool, sophisticated appearance made Vanessa feel dowdy in comparison, as if she had just come off the farm in Iowa.

As if she had read her mind, Midge whispered, "Her name is Stephanie Ferguson. She's Brandt's frequent companion and, I might add, one of the city's leading socialites — daddy owns a string of department stores. As you can see, two failed marriages haven't hurt her looks a bit; she's still a knockout. But don't let that last you, Stephanie Ferguson is about as warm as ice on a winter day."

As much as Vanessa hated to admit it, Stephanie was beautiful. Her glamor features enhanced by the air of confidence reflected in the cold, green eyes of her perfectly made-up face.

How foolish of me to let Brandt affect me like

Be a sexy dresser — and wow the man in your life

Simple changes in the way you dress can create a sexier you — and guarantee that you'll have captivated men marching to your come-hither drum beat.

That's no secret to top costume designer Barbara Burgher whose creative talents have dressed Hollywood luminaries like the sultry Lee Remick and gorgeous Angie Dickinson.

It's all in knowing how to do a lot with the little you've got and Barbara makes it look easy in the revealing hints she re-

"Dressing Sexy" (Simon & Schuster).

Here are a few tantalizing pointers that will help you transform the meek that is you into the exotic, beguiling temptress you want to be.

◆ If your nose, your profile, your figure, are obscured with clumsy-looking locks, much-worn and shapeless like your Sunday-best black sateens, though, are never fun purposes.

■ Don't think that tight, body-fitting clothes are automatically sexy. They can cause unsightly bumps and bulges that are anything but appealing.

can create a slit in a straight skirt — simply by opening a seam.

■ Since leather is animal, try it in skin-tight pants and skirts. Now that's sexy!

◆ Velvets, taffeta and organdy will make you look elegant and regal — so sexy. So forget 'em.

◆ Slit wool skirts won't move with your body. When you bus make sure your skirt swishes and ripples when you walk.

◆ Never, never, never buy double knit — that is pure sleaze!

■ Lace trimming on lingerie

feminine — and the perfumers mystery spice S. E. X!

◆ Always give yourself an extra dab of perfume behind the knees and a spot in the navel.

◆ Dangling hoop earrings are sexier than studs or buttons.

◆ Don't wear a necklace so large that it dominates or makes your neck look like a turtle's.

In a nutshell, the smart woman who wants to create a dynamite sexy image goes 10 percent beyond what convention dictates as appropriate. Check and double-check your look for minor unintentional

SAFE DIET PILL

. . .You'll Lose Weight & Never Be Hungry"

Throw away those dangerous time-release capsules of those well known crash diets. Say goodbye to the rigors of strenuous diets and hard-to-prepare calorie counting meals. SPIRULINA-1000®* TABLETS ARE ONE OF NATURE'S MOST PERFECT FOODS IN A MOST POTENT FORM. SPIRULINA-1000® WILL HELP YOU TO SHED POUNDS FAST BY TAKING AWAY YOUR DESIRE TO EAT WITHOUT USING ANY HARMFUL DRUGS!

by Dr. B. J. Howard, Ph.D./Research Nutritionist

LOS ANGELES - If you're overweight, if you've tried fad diet after fad diet to lose those unhealthy extra pounds of unattractive fat—then I have some wonderful news for you! And it's simply this—STOP ALL THOSE FAD DIETS. That's right! Stop them at once! Although this may go against everything friends, doctors and so-called weight-loss experts have told you, don't worry. Because I am going to tell you about a new way of losing weight. A way that's so amazingly simple and yet so miraculously effective that you'll find it hard to believe. A way to lose weight that may make all other diets obsolete. But the results will speak for themselves.

You may:

- LOSE UP TO 30 POUNDS AND MORE THE FIRST TWO WEEKS!
- SHRINK 2 TO 4 SIZES OFF YOUR WAISTLINE IN JUST 12 DAYS!
- LOSE A POUND A DAY WHILE CONTINUING YOUR REGULAR EATING HABITS!

And you'll do it all without dangerous drugs, special recipes or hour after hour of grueling exercise. Sound impossible? Too good to be true? I know! does. But—before you make a hasty decision, read the rest of this announcement. It will explain the medical facts behind this amazing new way to lose weight. And it will also explain how you can begin immediately to take part in our on-going weight loss research program with the chance to receive a $500 cash award.

SPR-1000®—NATURE'S PERFECT FOOD THAT STRIPS POUND AFTER POUND OF FAT FROM YOUR BODY

The key to this system is a small tablet called SPR-1000® that is a super concentrated form of spirulina, a rare hydrocarbon food which is one of the world's purest, most perfect natural sources of protein, made directly from photosynthesis, an association of sunlight and water. And recent articles in major national publications have quoted such authorities as an esteemed Maryland University professor, a noted student of the molecular modeling from a California university and a director of a prestigious San Francisco research facility on what this amazing substance can accomplish.

HOW SPR-1000® TABLETS WORK

You take them before meals. And that's all you do! No starvation! No grueling exercise!

Once inside your body SPR-1000® is absorbed at once. Their super energized and concentrated protein releases amino acids throughout your body. Once there, these amino acids may act as a signal that tells your brain's appetite control center that you've absorbed enough nutrition. You go down to eat as large you'll have to actually force yourself to finish one of your regular meals. You'll eat less and less—naturally! Without practicing self-denial. And your body will begin immediately to burn all those unwanted pounds of fat. And it will continue to burn them off at an amazing rate.

WHY SPR-1000® TABLETS ARE SO SAFE

Many diet plans use high-powered physician-dispensed prescription drugs/chemicals to help you control your appetite. But if you read the labels carefully, you'll notice they say in small print, that these chemicals are dangerous for people with heart conditions, high blood pressure, kidney disease, and other ailments. Not so with new SPR-1000® tablets. The ingredients have been declared 100% safe by the F.D.A. And as you melt away pound after pound of fat with SPR-1000® tablets, it will actually help to nourish your body! SPR-1000® tablets are totally natural. They contain no harmful drugs, chemical additives or preservatives. Yet they are super concentrated with natural protein and vitamins. They have 3 times the purplish source of rich, fresh beef, 250% more Vitamin B-12 than raw liver, 20 times the calcium of fresh, pure milk. And SPR-1000® tablets are assimilated by your body four times as fast as beef or pork. That's why they may act as quickly to suppress your hunger as quickly as overall curves. And why many have lost 20, 30, 40 or 50 pounds or more in a month—and felt so well about doing it!

SPR-1000® TABLETS ARE AVAILABLE NOW

SPR-1000® tablets are available now—only by mail order from SPR-1000, Inc. They are not sold in stores anywhere. And when you use them you can participate in our on-going nation wide weight-loss research program. You'll receive a special registered research form with your supply of SPR-1000® tablets. Use it from time to time to tell us how much weight you lose. And if we use your story to tell others about SPR-1000®, we will award you as much as $500 cash!

Of course you have our 100% guarantee of total satisfaction. If you're unhappy with SPR-1000® for any reason, just let us know within 30 days and we'll rush you an immediate refund of your entire purchase price. You can't lose. But you can get up to $500 in cash for helping us with our research. And, more importantly for your future health and positive mental outlook, you can achieve easy, safe and effective lifetime control of your weight!

READ THIS IF NOTHING ELSE

New SPR-1000® is a complete weight reduction program. SPR-1000® tablets are completely natural. They contain no artificial ingredients or drugs like phenylpropanolamine, which are found in many of today's time-released appetite suppressant capsules. So SPR-1000® tablets are not a contributing cause of heart trouble, high blood pressure, or kidney disease. The ingredients have been declared 100% safe by the F.D.A. In fact, as they help shrink your waist and melt away up to a pound of fat a day they actually nourish your body! SPR-1000® tablets have POWN THREE THE PROTEIN POWER OF BEEF! 250% MORE VITAMIN B-12 THAN RAW LIVER! 20 TIMES THE CALCIUM OF FRESH, PURE MILK. And SPR-1000® tablets are absorbed four times faster than beef protein, so they turn down your brain's appetite center almost immediately. A famous Japanese doctor from Sapporo used a less potent form of SPR-1000® with over 200 patients. Every single patient lost weight. You will receive a research form with your SPR-1000® tablets. And if we use your experiences to help tell the SPR-1000® story, you will receive a cash award of up to $500. Stop dieting and start losing weight with SPR-1000® tablets!

NO-RISK OFFER

YES, send me the supply of SPR-1000® tablets I've indicated below along with my weight-loss research form. I understand that if not completely satisfied, I may return the unused portion within 30 days for a full refund. I also understand that if you use the completed research form in full I will receive about SPR-1000® I will receive a cash award of up to $500.

Life at the top

Cliff and Phyllis Randall have their life on the top — even though the door of their 200-year old cottage is 12 feet above ground! Necessity that makes most deliveries a daily challenge, but postman Ian Fraser solves the problem by using a ladder. "Believe me, it's easier than parking letters under the back door," Ian said. The Randalls of Tideford, England, plan to build a staircase next year.

way he did. Vanessa chided herself. How could I have thought for a moment . . .

She pushed the thought from her mind and vowed to enjoy the rest of the party, despite Brandt's refusal to grant her an interview and in spite of the fact that this arrogant man had reduced her to a trembling, humiliated shadow of herself with just a few words. But wherever she moved, talking to one group or another, she felt his gaze on her. Even when he slipped his arm around Stephanie Ferguson, his eyes sought Vanessa.

"Come on, Midge," Vanessa said, determined to enjoy herself. "Let's find the champagne."

Later, after a glass or two of Brandt's ice-cold and expensive bubbly, Vanessa's sparkle had lifted appreciably. By the time she was ready to say good-night, she felt like her old cheerful self again. Her encounter with Brandt a dim memory to be stored safely away where it couldn't hurt anymore.

She paused it solemnly when she took his hand at the end of the evening and said, "It's been a marvelous party. Thank you so much for inviting me."

"You aren't leaving already, are you?" he said and Vanessa detected a note of disappointment in his voice.

"Afraid so," Vanessa replied cheerily trying to convince herself that her heart wasn't really pounding because he was holding her hand so firmly.

"I have to work tomorrow, and even if I weren't interested in having you do a story on me or on the estate at Ojai, I . . ."

"Well, Brandt, your house is lovely and I enjoyed the party. But I don't think we'll meet again soon. After all, we move in such different circles."

"Circles aren't prisons, Vanessa," he replied, his voice deliberately challenging. A strange smile played across his mouth and his eyes held hers as he added, "Don't be surprised — at anything!"

Vanessa wanted to run to the door. She had to escape, her face was burning again, her heart racing. What was it about this man that left her so utterly weak and shaken, she wondered.

"Circles aren't prisons . . . Don't be surprised . . . Don't be surprised at what?" Vanessa asked herself, remembering how she felt when his disturbing eyes looked into and through her own, reducing her to a helpless bundle of fiery emotions — emotions she had no wish to analyze.

Two weeks passed, until the afternoon Vanessa was having lunch at the Three Musketeers restaurant with a friend and Brandt walked in. Her heart beat wildly and she wished she could fade into a corner.

Why did I pick this restaurant? she asked herself nervously. Oh Lord, I hope he doesn't see me.

Thoughts raced through her mind, colliding with each other . . . why did I have the idea to draw . . . maybe he won't see me . . . maybe he won't even [illegible] back door I can slip out of . . .

Vanessa couldn't reach her head. Suddenly the restaurant was too hot. She was no longer listening to what her friend was saying. She kept her eyes lowered, praying a game she remembered from childhood. If I can't see him, he can't see me. But her throat suddenly went dry and she reached for a sip of water, knocking over a wine glass. As Vanessa bending to straighten it, she saw a shadow fall across the table, and she knew he was standing there.

Vanessa lifted her gaze to him, and in the soft, subdued light of the restaurant, she thought his eyes held a very different expression. The arrogance she had seen in them the night of the party was gone, and in its place was a look she hadn't seen before.

Brandt's eyes were soft, caring and they held a promise that made her swallow hard.

NEXT WEEK: Vanessa was

Paul Newman turns consumer's friend & angrily attacks move to hike gas prices

By KITTY MacNAB

Race car driver and occasional actor Paul Newman has taken up the banner of crusader to fight against lifting price controls on natural gas which, he says, would cause fuel costs to SOAR.

The handsome superstar held a press conference in Washington, D.C., where he plans to testify before Congress.

And he was furious when someone asked why a movie star was getting involved in politics.

"I'm sore because I have five kids and I don't want to put on my tombstone that I wasn't part of my time," said the blue-eyed actor-activist.

Paul said he was alarmed at the idea of lifting the price ceilings on natural gas which already is too costly for poor folks to pay their heating bills.

He claimed that any decontrol of pricing would cause the cost of the precious fuel to skyrocket.

Later, the talented actor lined up a lot and explained why he was so testy at the press conference.

"There's two things that make me sweat," said the motorcycle and Dutch Classic car buff as a cigarette bobbed at the wheel of a race car.

"Live television and government. So you're going to see a pretty darkroom me."

"Norman Rockwell Collector's Plate" Only $3

That's right! Only $3 for a magnificently detailed "Norman Rockwell Collector's Plate." The very plate that has sold for as much as $15! Are we crazy? No, of course not. We want you to be among the first to sample our line of "Norman Rockwell Plates" and other collectibles. We might lose money on this ad, but we know that many of you will want to acquire many more "Rockwell Collectibles" in the coming years. Norman Rockwell is the most famous and most widely collected of all American artists. His works have so eloquently captured the spirit of the American people . . . the quality and color of our daily lives. These plates, which are now offered to you, faithfully reproduce in full color the charm and sensitivity of this great artist. Famous "Rockwell" are skillfully reproduced on gleaming white porcelain. Each plate is a generous eight and one half inches (8½") in diameter. Your purchase of these "sampler" plates is limited to no more than three (3) plates per household. Tough from fun says prisons are too soft

Retired prison boss Don Byington recalls the old days when he guarded some of America's most famous prisoners — and how all of them impressed him favorably

By DICK DONOVAN

Bearded Doc Byington nodded about-ers with the likes of Al Capone Lucky Luciano Machine Gun Kelly and Jake Gutik But he wasn t a friend — he was their keeper

And in the 16 years and retired federal prison official, today s prisons are too soft

They're lousy Too many do-gooders They let the prisoners run the prisons That's my opinion ' he said

Through the years Byington has played host to famed prisoners including Robert Stroud, "The Birdman of Alcatraz "

He says Stroud was a cranky old man"

"I guess I've spent more time in federal prisons than just about anybody Byington told the NEWS

And it s unusual praise with most of the big time gangsters regarding the cons as killers at heart like

"I spent 16 years in the federal prison system before I retired in 1967 I started as a guard at four in 1951 and I worked my way up through the ranks of administration to warden "

Byington now a golf course caretaker in Wilson Point was born and raised in Lake Placid N Y He served the end of a five year hitch in the Marines as a gunnery sergeant in Nicaragua during the late 1920s

He joined a federal bureau of prisons that the Justice Department was looking for prison guards and as a way to expand Then brought a special exchange from the ordinary and launched a career spanning more than three decades with the federal Bureau of Prisons

He was assigned to the federal detention facility in New York where all people convicted of federal crimes were processed before being sent to the five federal penitentiaries then operated

That was in the wild heyday of Depression-era crime and Byington met many of the real notorious gangsters and escorted them paths as he shuffled them and their personal property to and from

He learned and begrudgingly admired Lucky Luciano the Prohibition boss of Murder Inc a ruthless but shrewd businessman who ran the city s underworld

Others he met over the years include George Machine Gun Kelly Dutch Schultz eccentric gang boss Willie Sutton and Jake Gimpy Thomas Gentle the paymaster of the bloody Capone mob And some of his recollections about the nation s most notorious gangsters are far from flattering

Brother Al Capone the Chicago mobster whom treated to work could only shake his head sometimes with a smile

"That s the only way to describe him and I hold them up

Despite the nasty characters he met she claims he came to harm was when a prisoner in Byington also never married was warden of the federal prison on McNeil Island in Washington from 1948 to 1963 After another assignment he returned to McNeil as warden in 1958 where he remained until he retired

Redmond Robert Stroud was a grouchy prisoner.

"Alcatraz was good enough for the people who were in it," he said "But McNeil was my favorite It was a 70,000-acre land sanctuary and you really saw what it was

Among Don Byington's prisoners were people like Chicago gang

Docs say ginseng really works

By DAVID WYATT

The ancient Oriental tonic ginseng, long believed to be a cure-all for everything from flu to impotence — is now being taken seriously by medical researchers around the world

And tests have shown that athletes drinking ginseng athletes performed better, workers produced more and the body was better able to fight disease

"Ginseng improves the general health and vitality of old people by delaying the effect of degenerative diseases," says Dr Udolph Stephan Fulder of the British National Institute for Medical Research

Dr L M Perry of Harvard University says the root improves metabolism

"There's evidence of ginseng's anti-stress properties says Tamino University s Professor E J Shellard

The root that looks like a parsnip is available in health food and drug stores — in tablets powder capsules and tea There are shampoos soaps and even perfumes and toothpastes made from it

In Florida a bright red preparation that got its zest from ginseng is on a two-tablet-a-day plan at Disney

"Ginseng relieves stress and lifts depression It means we might serve day work like a six hour day says Ray Hamilton Cooper of England author of a book about the root

Instead of falling into a chair after work people feel less tired If you are not shattered after a day s work then you are probably going to have a better sex life

The amazing root symbolizes called the Happy Pill helps athletes run faster play harder and swim longer It stimulates the body s own energy spanning the athlete s ability to work on to the most outstanding performance possible

Ginseng is considered fatigue and stress

Japanese and German farmers give a free rein to workers to boost production

Foreign Secretary of State Peter Rost-eager takes it to the ready actors actresses rock stars and top athletes

A Russian soldiers carry it in their medical packs to treat wounds and Chinese doctors give it to surgery patients

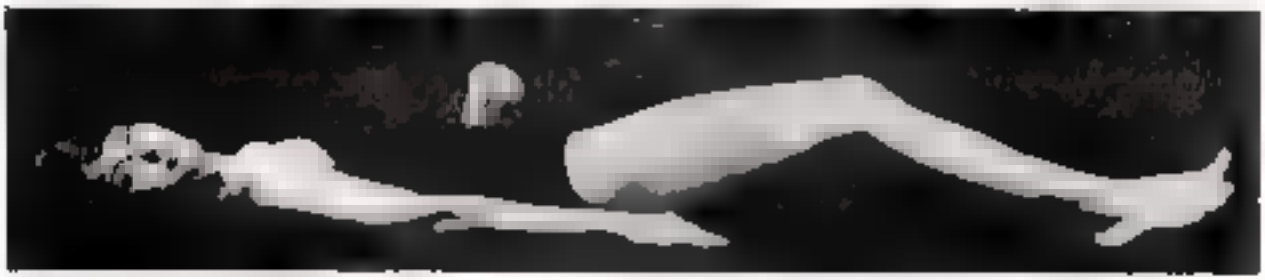
And glowing it was believed to be the secret weapon used by the Viet Cong for strength in fight American troops

Experts say ginseng is becoming more accepted world wide and more and more people are taking it says John Crabtree sales manager of a British company that markets ginseng products imported from Korea

It is a Korean Oriental remedy that s been around for 5 000 years

The way it seems to work is that if you are stressed it returns you there and if you are not it

HOW TO RUB YOUR STOMACH AWAY!



Sound impossible? Then let us quote directly from Dr. Stephen Chang:

"What is going to be disclosed here is a disarmingly simple method to lose weight and inches.

"This weight loss method does not come from Western medicine. Rather, its source is the wisdom of the ancient Chinese sages . . . arrived at through literally 4,000 years of observation and study of the natural principles of [illegible]. It is only now that this ancient wisdom of the body is becoming available to you."

"The simplest and most natural way to lose weight is by this effortless, two-minute exercise."

"There are two principal components to this exercise. The first part begins by lying flat on your back. Relax. Put the palm of your hand on your navel. Then simply rub—nothing more—in exactly the way I am going to show you." (See page 5 of Dr. Chang's Confidential Report.)

"What is really taking place while you are rubbing your stomach away is this. Where the hand is gently passed over the body this way, energy invisible to the naked eye passes from that hand through the skin. So . . . you are actually 'brushing with energy' the cells and tissues throughout the stomach area."

. . . This electricity from your own hand gently massages the intestines, the blood vessels, and the digestive and eliminatory systems. Fatty accumulations and deposits are dissolved from their resting places and eventually broken up. They are then passed into the eliminatory system and out of the body."

"By such apparently simple means, the superfluous areas of the stomach and abdomen are literally rubbed away."

"What I must impress upon you is that losing weight is largely a matter of increasing the efficiency of the digestive organs. Have you ever tried cutting down on your food intake, or changed your diet overall, and still found yourself unable to lose weight? This is most probably because your digestive and eliminatory processes are not what they should be.

"Well, this exercise is a kind of gentle and natural colonic irrigation . . . excess fat is being burned off. Fatty tissues around the stomach and intestines are metabolized and then discarded."

"You needn't feel you must do it for more than two minutes at a time . . .

"The exercise should be performed twice a day (or more if you like) while lying on your back. The best times to do it are the first thing in the morning and then again before you go to sleep.

"If you persist, you will reap other benefits as

They rubbed away their stomachs. Why shouldn't you?

Documented case histories, told in Dr. Chang's own words.

I lecture frequently on college campuses, and was one day in Upstate New York. The dean of studies, who was very overweight, brought myself older than her years. I suggested the exercises. In just a few weeks she had lost five inches at the waist, hips, and thigh areas. She became a youngish, more vibrant woman, and a lucky friend of one of the most important academic institutions in the nation.

John Morgan, president, was overweight, sluggish, preoccupied. And, at age 51, he was almost ready to give up. His secretary urged him to try the simple exercises. By applying the exercise faithfully, he regularized his bowel movement, and lost 40 pounds.

A very pretty, but extremely overweight woman of 29 came up to me to say that she feared she'd never shed her excess inches - she was wearing a size 14 dress, and that was right on her. After trying the exercises, she realized that they are actually fun to do, and within two weeks she proudly bore home her new 10 dress with a twirl. Today she is down to a size 11. When I first met her, she appeared to be in her 40s—and today she can easily pass for her very early 30s.

Although I wouldn't recommend that a person continue to eat and drink excessively, let me give you an example of a man who did just that and still managed to lose inches. Paul C. was nothing short of obese, and he was still gaining weight. He told me that eating was his chief pleasure in life and he didn't see that he would be willing to give it up. "But is there a way for me to lose this stomach?" he asked, but I recommended that he do the Exercise. I got a call from him a month later, and he told me gleefully that he had already lost three notches on his belt! He continued to lose weight until he had stabilized into a normal range, but he still shows his friends his old belt.

Morgan was one of my most difficult cases. He'd come to me just after he'd lost his influential job as head of a major airline. Partly because he was under so much stress, he had become a compulsive eater, and was getting so fat-prone. He determined to stay faithfully with the Exercise, did in fact slim down and firm up, and shortly thereafter was hired to president of a major food company. I see him often, and he looks younger today than ten years ago.

Several years ago I spoke to a group of overweight wives of physicians. After my talk, one young woman said, "Dr. Chang, I don't think my marriage is going to last. What can I do?" Well, she was about 5'9", and weighed almost 210 pounds. I suggested the exercise. Several weeks later the young wife called me to say that her figure was "straightening out." I saw the couple quite recently, and she is nicely proportioned. Her husband now paid her close attention (as did all other men in her practice!)

because you will have reduced to burden. You may very well notice an upswing in your level of vitality."

Prove it to yourself at our risk . . .

Dr. Chang's Confidential Report, "How to Rub Your Stomach Away," can be obtained nowhere else but through this advertisement.

Because it is simple, and therefore so short, its cost is only $4.98, plus $1 postage and handling. This is far less than any reducing plan, magic or pill that we know.

Put it to work for you one week, one month, or one year. If it does not do everything he has said, simply return it for your full purchase price back.

Simply send an envelope with $5.98—cash, check or money order to Dr. Chang's Personal Reduction Incorporated Dept. WWHR-8 333 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10017

Patton returned from the grave to save his son

Ghosts to the rescue!

By ROB ROBERTS

The ghost of famed American hero George S. Patton Jr. rescued his son from death on a battlefield. Superstar actor James Cagney and his wife were saved from a horrible auto accident by the spirit of his dead father.

These are a few of the amazing stories of ghosts reaching from the grave to express eternal devotion to their loved ones

Actor James Cagney and his wife Frances were driving on a California road one night when they heard the voice of Cagney's dead father. He swerved in to the car with them and he was begging them to slow down

Realizing speed Cagney was able to avoid a collision with the oncoming trailer that swerved across the highway

Army general Maj. Gen. George S. Patton III credits the ghost of his father — Old Blood and Guts Patton — with saving him and his tank company on a German battlefield in 1953

When the pioneer was in desperate need of lack of ammunition his father guided him through fierce enemy fire to a radio where he could get help

Here are some other amazing examples of ghostly love

● Talking on the telephone to a friend Mrs Lillian Holmes of Anchorage Alaska was startled to hear her dead sister's voice say she was the operator

It said clearly "Get out Lil — get out now"

The dead woman's voice from the beyond obviously went unheeded she took later in Alaska's historic Good Friday earthquake And her friend maintained that she had heard the voice too

● When August Roy bought an old cow house in Manchester N H he recalled at once that the house was haunted by someone known locally as Drunk Poor Mary She cleaning up the place he was about to throw an old paper bag in the fire when he was suddenly grasped by an icy hand

Recovering from his panic he found no one at all in the house — but the paper bag held several pounds of blasting powder

So people in the neighborhood were puzzled when the old man suddenly appeared from nowhere to take the hand of a six-year-old girl who had crossed the pigeon. But what puzzled them even more was a newspaper discovery that Bob Hogan had died of a heart attack days earlier

● And among all these chilling ghost story of them all is the classic tale of the spectral hitchhiker

On the night of June 17 1939 engineers and firemen had a few too many [illegible] the Toledo Ohio yards [illegible] shunted by brakeman and newsman this decided to take one last ride on an old [illegible] scheduled for the scrap heap next day

Gun-slinging granny shoots thief

By ROSE GRADY

When gutsy grannny Eileen Watkins came home from church and found a burglar ransacking her home, she knew just what to do — she whipped out her pistol and shot him!

And the 78-year-old grandmother of 30 said she would have "let him have it again" if he had made another move at her or her 81-year old husband Dahle.

"Lord have mercy!" Eileen told The NEWS. "It's all you hear or read about these days — old people being mugged, robbed and murdered in their homes.

"When he turned and started toward me, I thought, 'Oh, Lord!' He's going to hurt me — he's going to shoot us or he's got a knife!' That's when I started shooting."

Eileen and her husband, a retired railroad worker, had returned to their Indianapolis, Ind., home from the church where they noticed that the alarm light was still on. "I always turn it off the doors whenever I leave home and I knew the door had been closed," she said. "My husband walked in and went straight to the bathroom. But I checked the house.

"When I went into the study room I noticed that the curtain was ripped. It makes the room looks dark and I had opened it just before we had left home. When I switched on the light, this guy jumps out from where he was hiding behind my dryer.

"He pointed gun me and I followed suit, yelling and screaming. 'What are you doing in my home?' Then my husband came out to see what all the fuss was about and the guy grabbed him, but it was the fourth round.

Eileen said the young intruder made a beeline for the front door but then paused and turned to face her. She grabbed the loaded gun she keeps at a standby.

"If you're gonna have a gun around you have keep it handy," she declared. "But I have to admit I never ... I'd ever used it once. I didn't even know if the gun was going to fire. I've had it a lot of years. I fired it once into the ground one New Year's Eve. But it hasn't been fired in at least five years."

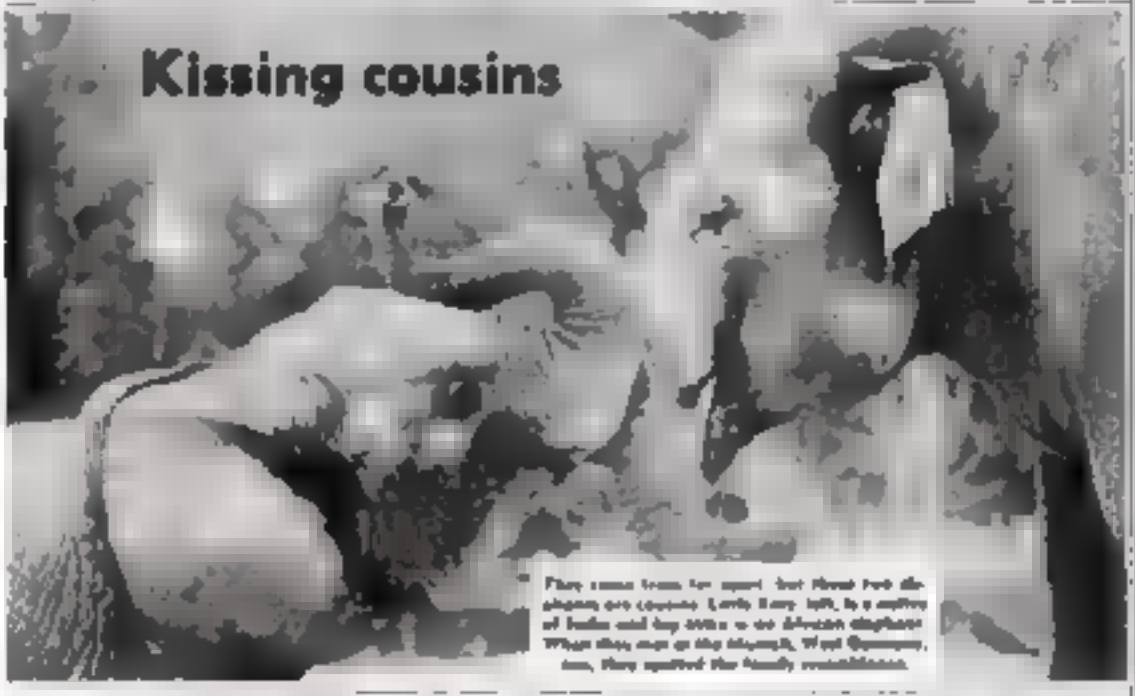
Unfortunately for the burglar, the gun worked just fine and Eileen popped off three shots at a range of 10 feet.

He grabbed his arm as I figured I had hit him," she recalled. "I guess he had enough because he ran out the door, around the side of the house and down the street.

Almost 30 minutes later, 18-year-old Antonio L. Stanfield was arrested at a hospital where he had gone for treatment. He told a friend had accidentally shot him in the arm. He was charged with burglary.

The Lord knows I don't ever want to hurt anyone," she said. "But when they rushes at you like he came at me, well ... you just don't know what they might do.

I wasn't being courageous. I was just scared."



They seem keen for sport but these two chimps are cousins. Lady Mary, left, is a native of India and Jap Willie is an African elephant. When they met at the Munich, West Germany, zoo, they spotted the family resemblance.

Skipper survives icy hell when ship capsizes

By DICK DONOVAN

Skipper George McMurrick endured two days in the freezing storm-tossed Pacific, the only survivor of a dinghy sinking that snuffed out the lives of his four ship mates!

And when the father of nine finally stayed his way onto a barren beach on the southern coast of Washington he was on the brink of death. Later doctors said his body temperature was 10 degrees below normal!

"I'm a lucky man to be alive!" McMurrick told The NEWS.

"I'm alive. The other guys didn't make it. But I had a lot of help. God was at my shoulder all the way. I never would have made it without His help."

McMurrick's terrifying ordeal began as he piloted his 58-foot trawler Midnight Express through the storm-tossed Pacific ing waters to make offshore from Cape Disappointment.

Skipper George McMurrick recovers from ordeal at sea.

We were unloading a net full of rock cod," McMurrick said. "The seas were running about 20 feet high at the time.

"Suddenly the boat gave [illegible] and went over on her side and never came back. It went really quick — maybe 3 or 10 seconds and she was gone. It was a very spooky situation."

One of the five man crew was trapped below decks when the Midnight Express went to the bottom. But McMurrick and the other three were thrown into the [illegible] and managed to reach a life raft that had mercifully floated free when they were struggling in the heaving seas. But they couldn't help the other crew men.

"We weren't that far apart," McMurrick said. But the seas were too strong. We just couldn't get to them.

For the next two nightmare days McMurrick and the 35-year-old crewman clung desperately to the small life raft.

At the peak of the storm the waves were up to 30 feet high. McMurrick said. "They were only a matter of [illegible] it was a gale for Jerry and me in the life raft."

Finally, after more than 48 hours in the numbing water, the raft was swept into the roaring coastal breakers. A few hundred yards away lay the beach, safety and the end of their incredible agony.

"But the surf was too much for the raft," McMurrick said. "It overturned and we were in the water. We didn't have much choice — we had to swim for our lives or drown. Jerry didn't make it."

When McMurrick at last clawed his way onto the deserted beach, he was too exhausted to stand up. He lay in the sand for an hour before he could find the strength to walk.

"I kept walking until I came to a road," he said. "I just kicked in the door and used the phone to call for help. Then I just sat and waited, thinking how lucky I was."

MY AMERICA

By ED ANGER

Speak English if you want to be an American

California has always been known for some pretty weird goings-on, like hot tub parties and health food juice, but something is happening now that takes the cake.

The Los Angeles Spanish-speaking community is trying to buy the phone company.

You know why? According to this one group of Chicanos, there is a big problem because the operators don't speak Spanish.

Of course the operators don't speak Spanish — this isn't Mexico City. And I'll guarantee you that the operators in Mexico City don't speak English.

America has always been a welcome people from other countries who want to come here for a better life.

But I think people and they should think they have when the foreigners who come here refuse to learn about and learn how to be good Americans.

One of the first steps to becoming an American is learning how to talk like one.

The Italians who came here did, so did the Poles, Germans, Hungarians and French.

Everybody knows from reading the Bible what happened when God made the workers who were building the Tower of Babel speak different tongues — the project never got finished.

Here in the Spanish speaking folk who really have to get to help build a stronger and better America if they don't speak the language?

I think it's downright rude and ungrateful of all these foreigners who come here to expect Americans to bend over backwards for them. We offer them the opportunity that every other American has a right to — the opportunity to work and make a better life for themselves as the best citizens in the world.

But the Chicano group in L.A. thinks Americans ought to change their language in Spanish to make things easier for them. Maybe we should also change our way of [illegible] and traditions?

I think it's time that our government officials stopped bending over backwards for every new business group and reminded the immigrants they were in here to learn English about — Americans.

The scene that ended 25 years of heartbreak

Rick Lindsey and his sister Sally Knipp embrace as news on an airport runway after their painful search of searching for each other ended in a happier reunion

Rick Lindsey and his sister, Sally Knipp, embraced on an airport runway — meeting for the first time since they were separated by adoption — more than 25 years ago.

That joyfully tearful reunion at Woodrum Field in Roanoke, Va., ended Sally's 25-year search for the brother she had last seen when he was a boy of 7 and she was a tyke of 4.

"Now we'll get acquainted and really get to know each other," Rick said as he walked arm in arm with the sister he hadn't seen for so many years. "It's been a long time ... such a long time."

Rick's last memory of Sally was back in the Lucas County Children's Home in Toledo, Ohio. She was only 3 when she was adopted and another family adopted Rick when he was 5.

Although Rick and Sally had searched for years, they had little hope of ever finding each other because of their different names and the [illegible] agencies keep on their records.

Sally began her search when she was 18, after she learned she was an adopted child and had a brother.

Finally, [illegible] a last search led her help, she wrote to Anne Knopf who writes the daily Action Line column in the Detroit Free Press.

The columnist learned that Rick was in Roanoke, Va., and notified him of the sister's search.

"Sally, Sally. This is your brother," were the first words she heard. "Oh! Thank God!" she joyfully replied.

Two weeks later, Sally, accompanied by her husband Tom, stepped off a plane and ran into the arms of the beloved brother she had lost 27 years ago.

How to land your dream job

You can improve your chances of landing the perfect job with these practical tips from a top expert to guide you through the job employment interview.

By DIANE JACOBS

"The way you talk and the way you handle yourself during all interviews are extremely important," explained Constance Dettwiler, whose latest book "Nine to Five" (Prentice-Hall, $8.95) will be out later. "Your clothes, background, experience — your resume — get you the interview, but it's the elements that will determine whether you get the job."

● Dress appropriately for the type of job you're applying for. If possible, check out the office or workplace before the interview to see how others dress.

"Let's face it," Constance said. The NEWS. "There aren't that many management jobs available and if you dress for a management job when you're applying for a clerical position you'll only threaten others. There's an old saying, 'Don't wear a surgeon's jacket if you're a nurse.' If you're uncertain about the proper dress, dress low-key. It's a general rule."

● Wear natural fibers. Synthetics or polyester. Natural fibers — cotton, wool, silk or linen — are more flattering. "They look rich. They are goods and have an air of quiet simplicity," says Constance.

● Wear light colors. Light colors at an interview look better. They make your face look lighter and brighter, especially if you're a little older. They light up the bottom of your face, making you look younger. Just check yourself in a shadow and then in bright light and you'll see the difference," says the New York City-based author and lecturer.

● Make sure your hair is clean and shiny. It's such a simple thing but most people don't realize how important it is. We sent a questionnaire to many personnel directors and employment agencies and they said the single most important thing they entered in first screenings of job applicants was...

● Choose a hairstyle that is not too extreme.

● Brush hair so it looks fresh and full. Sagging hangs look like you're hiding something. Hair that allows a full view of your face makes you look more open and honest.

● Have low-key makeup — that means no [illegible] or other distractions. Use unnaturally colored [illegible] and [illegible]. Conservative look. Where you are around people [illegible] your work shouldn't have upper part of your body as a magnet. Look for long [illegible] and understated.

● Watch interviewer's body language and their eyes for messages. They often tend to give you something they [illegible] like.

He killed for the girl on the red velvet swing

By HAROLD MAASS

America's first sex goddess had fame, riches, love and great beauty — still she an intrigued legendary actor James Cagney that he recently came out of retirement to make a movie about her violent, tragic life.

Reminding Evelyn Nesbit loved the first 40 years of her life as lonely dregsur after the night she watched her gallant ex-husband gun down her former lover in a jealous rage

As hundreds of bloodlands gaped in horror, Harry Kendall Thaw murdered famed architect Stanford White in the middle of a glittering audience atop New York's Madison Square Garden.

Many White was killed, but the fate was worse — a shattered Evelyn said many years later.

I died

I said that tragic day in 1906 the world had been Evelyn Nesbit a corpse. She — for she was to her mother took her to New York City to launch a career in modeling. Soon her striking beauty and flaxen curls made her the toast of the town and one of the best known women in

Some of the richest and most powerful men in America, including the actor John Barrymore, courted her and bought her expensive gifts.

Charles Dana Gibson, the most famous artist of the day, called her the girl of Evelyn "The Eternal Question" and said a report

The young debutantes and [illegible] girl was 21 when she [illegible] the mistress of Stanford White in the [illegible] triangle murder [illegible] designed Madison Square Garden.

After that affair cooled, she met and married Harry Thaw, [illegible] eccentric playboy with [illegible] Mona on his hands already!

But Evelyn made the mistake of her life when she told the jealous Thaw that she'd had an affair with White.

terrifying revelation of a secret American port on the Soviet Army's hideous techniques ite behaviour at its military borders.

* The elimination of fear or stress in combat troops to make them more effective machines, obedient soldiers or even suicide assassins.

* Super sophisticated brainwashing techniques to create dissidents and new followers.

* The use of mind controlling drugs and implants in the human brain.

* The use of mind bending drugs and magnetic radiation to read and warp the mind.

The plan has been judged against the Soviet military doctrine of how best to defeat the West, the government agency's report on the project claims.

The Soviet military leaders have already achieved startling success in training Army "volunteers" to do whatever they are told and to feel no fear while carrying out dangerous missions.

And another incredible project is the updating of brainwashing techniques developed by the Chinese Communists during the bloody Korean war and perfected in prisons.

Now it is being turned on Soviet soldiers who oppose the government.

The secret report says: "The Soviets have political and military goals for conducting behavioral modification research."

Western experts on Soviet Russian beliefs believe the Research programme are attracting higher political priority and increased funding.

"It is the Communist dream to have a human race who have total unthinking obedience — to respond like robots — to whatever is ordered. Then what these men do is carry out these orders with total, unthinking obedience," warned one such expert.

"The implications of this research are terrifying. It is unique in that this has become weapon fact. Human beings are being wiped out and people have become robots, dead people serving the party line."

But the most frightening aspect of the research — of far as the free world is concerned — is the application in the field of the project.

"Look here is soldiers — members people trained to wipe out a strategic American installation or a vital strategic base — which is unstoppable in any

Anthony "Hercules" Garofalo sounds off to a portion of his idol — opera singer Giovanni Martinelli. Garofalo was booted off to jail after giving a concert from a video tower

When Hercules sings, a whole town listens

By DICK DONOVAN

Big strongman Anthony "Hercules" Garofalo is a barrel-chested, car-lifting, steel-bending ball of a man — with the operatic voice of a Caruso!

And at the drop of a B flat, he'll walk a tightrope over a vat of hot lead on Verdi's "Ensemble della Forza" — much to the delight of Pleasantville, N.J., residents.

And citizens of the police-free suburban city of Atlantic City, N.J., will soon be able to pull on an ear to hear Garofalo in the leading role of his own opera.

Garofalo, 33-year-old unemployed construction worker has been making people happy, using neighborhood streets and high towers as his personal opera house, treating passersby to arias from "William Tell," "Tosca" and "Otello."

"He has one of the most gorgeous voices I've heard," declared Mary Laughlin, a voice coach at the University of Rhode Island's Music Department. "It's a natural. God gave him that kind of voice. A real robust tenor."

Margarete Radlauer-Cannon, artistic director of the Pro-Arte Opera, recalled first hearing that voice from her dressing room. Asked if she'd like to meet the singer, she said: "I'm not sure. I'd have to see what he looks like. I'm very particular about my singers."

Garofalo, who lives with his parents, has been a local celebrity since he was a child. He has been arrested for climbing the 165-foot Absecon Lighthouse in Atlantic City, and for scaling the 500-foot Marina Tower in Atlantic City.

"I was trying to get to the top," he explained. "I was trying to get to the top."

Garofalo's most famous stunt was his 1982 walk on a tightrope strung between the Marina Tower and the Showboat Casino. He was arrested and charged with trespassing.

"I was singing in my cell and some cop screwed me up with a towel so I couldn't properly sing," Hercules said. "Then he sprayed me with mace. God! I almost died in there."

Mr. Hercules [illegible] the tower, [illegible] down.

"The cops brought my father to the tower and told him to continue on to come down," Hercules said. "But pretty soon, my father and the cops began to argue.

"My father just started [illegible] in the cop's face. The said, 'Oh my God! No [illegible] me.' Then he went back [illegible] cried out.

"They thought I was going to jump, but I was never happier.

"I was above everything. It was a great release. People the next day said, 'Hey Here' We heard you from three miles away.'"

Garofalo, who has been unemployed since he was laid off as a construction worker, said he has been making people happy, using neighborhood streets and high towers as his personal opera house, treating passersby to arias from "William Tell," "Tosca" and "Otello."

"He has one of the most gorgeous voices I've heard," declared Mary Laughlin, a voice coach at the University of Rhode Island's Music Department. "It's a natural. God gave him that kind of voice. A real robust tenor."

Margarete Radlauer-Cannon, artistic director of the Pro-Arte Opera, recalled first hearing that voice from her dressing room. Asked if she'd like to meet the singer, she said: "I'm not sure. I'd have to see what he looks like. I'm very particular about my singers."

"That was erotic, God."

Silly psychiatrists think what rapists really need is a night at the disco

In what may be the craziest new psychiatric treatment yet, convicted sex maniacs were allowed out of a mental hospital — to dance the night away with unsuspecting women!

The shrinks defend the incredible outings for the rapists by saying the men need to "mingle with women in order to see whether the therapy we have had worked."

Groups of the sex criminals were taken on a local discotheque on several occasions, a nurse at Pecos State Hospital in San Bernardino, Calif., revealed.

Astonishingly, the women dancing at the nightspot were not told that the men were really mentally deranged rapists — who were in the hospital for brutal attacks on innocent females.

"Psychiatric treatment is not a matter of putting pills in someone's mouth," said hospital director Mel Tracey.

But after all these rapes made a fun for it on another wife outing arranged by psychiatrists — Christmas shopping at a downtown mall — some enraged townsmen demanded a halt to the daily disco trips and the shopping sprees.

His name is more than a mouthful

Take a deep breath — you are going to need it to say Fargoth Fingerhuthhuthpokerdon Dan Dorp-F'Tang-Ole-Berrish-Berrel, Wyo!

That's a name, believe it or not.

A 35-year-old cowboy, John Lewis, had his name legally changed to, well, you've already read it once.

The name change was a joke on the citizens of Liverpool, England.

The man received the incredibly long name on a city election ballot.

Officials weren't laughing.

A special day ballot had to be used to register the amazing name on the ballot.

And to top it all, Mayor William Bolen even urged the name in front of millions of television viewers tuned in for election results!

Get a load of this crash diet

Surgeons sliced away up to 400-pound men for many days, three hours — and then used a [illegible] to remove an incredible 182 pounds of blubber.

The fat man, whose life was endangered by his amazing weight, tipped the scales at just 282 pounds when the doctors at Long Island Jewish-Hillside Medical Center in New York had finished.

To support the gigantic man during the odd operation, an operating table three times the normal size was built.

And an astonishing 11 doctors and medical aides stood by to sustain the man during the incredible procedure.

After the pounds of fat were whisked away, a hoist was used to remove them from his body.

Cops didn't buy a gram of a story

When a guy showed up at the hospital complaining of a terrible pain down, doctors took a look down his pants — and pulled out a 3.25 carat diamond with the price tag still on it!

With a caught at relief, Rangle Mark Brown said the talented doctors that he won the object fair in a card game — then swallowed it by accident.

Suspicious docs called the cops and Brown repeated his incredible story for amazed officers.

But the Phoenix, Ariz., police didn't buy it.

Brown was booked for suspicion of burglary.

A misspelling keeps man out of jail

It was sweet victory for Arley Thomas Jr. when he beat a drug rap because of a court typist's spelling error.

The indictment that was supposed to charge the man with possession of a material from the coca plant — mainly cocaine — instead read "cocoa plant," as in chocolate.

"I can't send a guy to the pen for possession of chocolate, can I?" a disappointed Dallas, Tex., judge said.

A happy Thomas was set free when a chemist testified that the cocaine found in the man's apartment could not possibly have come from a cocoa plant.

Sheriff sees prisoner — for escaping!

An angry sheriff sued a drug dealer for $10,000 — after the dirt-talking desperado walked out of jail.

The shocked sheriff wants the money to cover the "cost and aggravation" that he suffered when Michael Colwell escaped from the Broward County, Fla., prison.

It seems the convicted drug pusher somehow got another inmate's identification papers and called the headquarters.

A few hours later he was a free man.

We'll Pay You $1.00 for Every Newspaper Article or Photograph You CLIP for Us

According to Our Instructions.

For the price of a newspaper you can make that cash! You have an independent source of income at your fingertips. ALL IN THE PRIVACY OF YOUR OWN HOME.

By following our simple directions:
You send us ten newspaper articles (or photographs) and we'll send you $10.00

You send us twenty newspaper articles or photographs, and we'll send you $20.00

And, believe it or not, the average person can easily do this clipping while having morning coffee.

What's the catch? The answer is: There is no catch.
The only skill you will need is the knowledge of which articles are more valuable than others, and how to cash in on their value. That is where we can help.

Here's Our Story And How It Works
All across the country there are people who could use extra income. People with full time jobs who could use spare money . . . housewives with extra time on their hands . . . parents who have time to spare . . . retired folks who are looking for some added income.
Well, we at JASON KEEPSAKES have come up with a way to help you turn that spare time into extra money.

What's involved is simply going through your local newspaper. There are certain articles which are more valuable than others. With our help, you'll be able to spot these articles and cash in on their value.
You see, we'd like to become the largest preserver of newspaper clippings. But in order to be successful, we need many newspaper articles. As you can well imagine, it would be very difficult for us to collect all the newspapers published around the country and go through them ourselves. It would be even more difficult to do the actual clipping and preserving of all these articles ourselves. So, we've decided to expand our advertising. We want to reach people who want to help us. We want you to help us. AND WE'RE WILLING TO PAY FOR IT. $1.00 or more for each article you secure. That's right. We'll pay you $1.00 or more for each article you secure for us according to our instructions. And our instructions are simple. They're clearly outlined in our short report. Each page carefully yet in easy to understand language explains how to locate which articles are worthy of clipping, and how to turn them into fast money. Instantly you'll be able to go through your newspaper and clip those articles that have value. It's as simple as that.

Have you ever thought of how much money you can make with our expertise? You work only as much as you like. Consider the quick cash, the freedom of self employment.

HERE'S AN EXAMPLE OF WHAT IT'S LIKE TO BE IN THE CLIPPING BUSINESS: Pick up any newspaper. Do not consider the important "Headline" news; that's national news. What you look for is the local news. For example, check out how many articles appear about something or someone in your own hometown. An engagement, a marriage, a new store that just opened. And that's just a sampling of the many articles that can make you money. That's the easy part of the program. Just follow our instructions and we'll mail you your $1.00 or $10.00 or $20.00 or more) the same day we receive the articles. And we'll even reimburse you for FIRST CLASS POSTAGE. In other words, when we receive the requested article, we'll send you your $1.00 and the cost of First Class Postage.

LET'S GO OVER IT AGAIN:
Step 1—You clip an article
Step 2—You follow our instructions as outlined in our report
Step 3—You send everything to us
Step 4—We send you $1.00 plus First Class postage for every article we receive according to the instructions in Step 2.

The coupon below is the first step on your way to making extra money. It might very well be the answer to how you can add extra dollars to your income. It may very well be your way to beat inflation.
In the coupon below we ask you to send us $10.00. This covers the price of the instruction booklet and all the additional material you'll need to get started. It also shows us that you are truly interested in helping us get news articles in order to make yourself extra money. It is important that we get only the people who want to make extra dollars. You see, we need you a lot more than you need us. But we're willing to pay. We are looking for sincere men and women who would truly like to earn some extra cash each week.

MONEY BACK GUARANTEE We know you'll be 100% satisfied. However, we guarantee a full refund of your purchase price at any time if you're dissatisfied. Act now. Remember, every newspaper you throw away is costing you money.

'Three's Company' is bad that Suzanne (ugh!) would help it

By REX WINSTON

I never thought I'd say this but I miss Suzanne Somers on "Three's Company."

Now that's quite a confession, especially since I was supposedly Suzanne one of the most ridiculous bimbo-blonde stereotypes to infest her woeful acting on TV viewers.

If Suzanne was a bimbo at times, why do I miss her? Well, there's no ABC lineup struggle after Suzanne left "Three's Company" who's even worse.

If the network has run a nationwide "Most Asinine Character" they couldn't have come up with a more pitiful example than Priscilla Barnes. I've seen pimples on the part that she's been unpersuasive. Her first prime time

When Suzanne played the part of Chrissy on "Three's Company," the show was a refreshingly simple, dirty little comedy. When Suzanne got too big for her britches and asked for too much money, the show turned her

Now that pitty Priscilla is a regular on "Fill the Bottle" "Three's Company" has fallen apart like a Ellis dirty British underwear.

Several things are high on the list of things I'd do if I were a queen. I'd fire the ABC casting chief who hired Priscilla for that starlet part.

Suzanne Somers won't you please come back?

I'd order all the cast to get all the things for "Three's Company" performers apparently on Prozac or tranquilizers.

I'd tell the show that discovering one mother-alive zombie is

John Ritter has obviously had it with all of the show. All he does each week is drag his lip across and stare into the camera and shake his head in a classic slant.

I would tell the writer thing for half the salary. Joyce DeWitt is just too dark and to play the opposite role little Tonight's episode: Rejecting orthodox methods, a desperate fighter takes his enemy all on up to an old moderne woman. Tough bounty hunter Josh Randall (Steve McQueen) attempts to take the boy from the rioting woman as well a masked burner can operate.

Josh Randall was a bounty hunter in the old west. His job was to bring in wanted criminals dead or alive. If the price was right, it didn't matter if Josh brought them in dead or alive.

Josh was a man of action and few words. He hardly ever smiled. He silenced his enemies with his gun, which was really a sawed-off shotgun that he called his "Trouble's Big," as did his talking for him.

Josh Randall was played by a young Steve McQueen, who later went on to become one of Hollywood's superstars. Many say McQueen copied the rough-and-tumble style of acting while filming "Wanted — Dead or Alive."

The show premiered on CBS and was cancelled in 1961. McQueen died of cancer in 1980. The show remained popular for years in reruns, mainly because of McQueen's large following.

Filthy, trashy, low-class shows shouldn't be seen by anybody!

I agree with the people who are fed up with the trash and filth on television. These low-class shows and commercials shouldn't be on anybody's TV set.

Doctors Claim New Miracle Drug Reverses Aging Process—Can Prolong Healthy Life Up To 120-150 Years Of Age.

No harmful side effects...safer than aspirin.

News is now sweeping the U.S. about a miracle drug—called H3—which doctors report . . .

- can dramatically reverse the aging process, prolonging life to 120, 130, even 150 years of age and beyond . . .
- can alleviate and in many cases reverse more than 100 serious diseases . . .
- is not habit forming and induces no harmful side effects . . .
- is so safe, it's been made available without prescription in over 80 countries . . .
- is quite inexpensive.

"There's no reason why men and women should not live up to the 120 years set up for them," says drug researcher, Dr. Anna Aslan. "I discovered that H3 has remarkable effects on cells and actually works to prolong the vitality, youth and life of the cell. It will undoubtedly extend vitality to old men and women and restore them to a more youthful condition."

Medical doctors and researchers around the world report that with many persons given H3 . . . changes definitely . . . show youthful complexion . . . restored vitality . . . feeling how grown back . . . gray hair turned dark again . . . and more zest for life.

A revealing result— extraordinarily proved.

Doctors report that H3 works on the cellular level to reverse aging process. After extensive studies on animals and humans, convinced under strict scientific testing procedure including "double blind" use groups, doctors report astonishing results such as these . . .

Professor Erik Lehnitz, one of Europe's foremost pharmacologists at the University of Heidelberg, says H3 is, "a medical wonder which works deepest up to the level of stem cell to vastly rejuvenate entire body."

Dr. Walter Bleibtreu of Stuttgart, Germany, who has used H3 for more than 10 years reports . . .

"I was struck by these rejuvenating effects . . . the total result of youthful and fresh appearance, better posture, elasticity, gone of skin, sight and hearing, an almost falling out of hair, improve in mental functions, such as thinking capacity, memory, sleep, mood, efficiency and alertness. The increase of sexual and other hormonal functions, due to improvement in heart and circulatory disturbances, blood pressure, arthritic complaints and premature signs of senescence of old age, were in most cases gone through the rejuvenation-therapy. Many persons of the climacteric age . . . [illegible]"

"They could revolutionize medicine."

Professor R. M. Brian, medical head of the famous Postgraduate Institute in Liverpool, states, "The results revolutionize medicine. I believe that Professor Aslan and her associates have found a valid method of prolonging the normal functions of the cellular tissues of the human body . . . [illegible] aging organs."

Dr. P. Bronnenkoff of Athens, Greece, physician, researcher who tested H3 on his patients over 15 years, old reports, "All patients had good vegetative, especially as well as physically, good memory & the general state of health improved and the [illegible]"

"Results more brilliant . . . dramatic . . . remarkable."

Dr. Ali Ajlouni at the Chemotherapy Rheumatism Clinic in London has clearly proved the use of H3 for treatment of rheumatism and arthritis. His reports, "The results would be hard to match in surgery or other methods of therapy." In a letter before the Congress of Internal Medicine in Paris, Dr. Lund stated, "The therapeutical results were brilliant, often dramatic and remarkable. A permanent cure can be expected with great probability."

In clinics mentioned there are hundreds of similar successes which allow more improvement and personal statements a patient for instance, who is suffering from an acute attack of heritage . . . and cerebro-spinal sclerosis, comes to the clinic from the wheelchair, to walk a short, within a few months."

And there are not a few of the cases of astonishing results being reported on H3.

"The climb for a youthful life."

But perhaps more convincing is the natural testimony of people who use H3.

One 64 year old man told one of America's largest newspapers, "I'm on the prime of life. I have no problems. I'm very fit in perfect health due to H3."

Another 70 year old male said, "I'm not showing the normal signs of old age like holding H3 is the climb for a youthful life."

A very well travelled, world-famous movie actress who will not be nameless, delightedly told millions of viewers on NBC-TV's Today Show that she has been using H3 for years.

Actually there are thousands of confidence cases in this country . . . famous actors and actresses, politicians, society people, and millions of others throughout the civilized world.

No ill side effects reported in 30 years of use.

Though H3 is new to America, it has been in use in over 80 countries for over 30 years by millions of people and acclaimed by hundreds of medical doctors. It is also a proven natural and safe effect has been reported.

Taken orally, it is not habit forming and can be used for a minimum of 6 to 10 years with no side effects.

It is not safe that it requires a consultation. Dr. Aslan's initiation on Drug Safety, of course, requires the consultation of your H3, endorsed as normal and caused a big general and therapeutic stimulation of time.

Indeed, it is said of the scientists as almost all to consider that it is available [illegible] and is prescribed by doctors of pharmacies of entrepreneurs under various names.

More to find out more about H3 —and where to get it.

I'm sick and tired of being pushed around and hit by my [redacted] family

Dear Babs: My family hates me. Even my own brother hates me. My older brother used to love me but now, even he takes sides against me.

When my twin or older brother need something, my mom gets it right away. When I need something like clothes or school supplies, my mom always says we don't have enough money.

I'm tired of being a punching bag for my family. My brothers are spoiled and mom gives them whatever they ask for. When I ask for something, she hits me.

I want to run away but am afraid of what will happen if I get caught and brought back home. Please tell me what to do.

Furious But Scared
Bakersfield, Calif.

Dear Furious: Once the kids starts rolling with family quarrels, it's sometimes difficult to get back on a smooth relationship. If you can, be honest with yourself. I think that you will see that the things you are looking are not exactly as serious as you have written.

What has happened is you have felt slighted and overpleased to the point of making the home situation difficult. By changing your attitude in one of sincere friendliness and concern for others, I think you will find this room and your brothers will treat you with equal respect.

To get started, have a family meeting and tell them [redacted]

'Just Another Lamp' Valued at $1,200.00.

BATON ROUGE, La. — A home owner has been told that a lamp he had was valued at $1200.00.

The amazing fact is that, while the price is unusually high, original glue and frayed shade cords have been appearing on the market for the first time.

Dr. will be identifying these lamps for collectors with a booklet, with photographs, on what to look for so that you too may get these lamps.

To get your booklet, just send $1.00 plus 25¢ postage and handling to: PPC Lamps, P.O. Box 97, Dept. 5, Lake Forest, Ill. 60045. If you have a glass bridal shade lamp, we will be glad to send a price sheet for an offer.

Dear Babs...

Babs will be very pleased to help anyone who has a personal problem. Just write to: Babs, Weekly World News, 600 S. East Coppell Ave., Lombard, Ill. 60148. Letters will be answered only in this column.

She doesn't care me or anymore

Dear Babs: My wife and I have been married for three years and she doesn't seem the same anymore. I don't know if it is problems or mine.

She isn't a good housekeeper and we argue about that.

She thinks that I should help, but but I work hard all week and I think she should take care of the house.

She is willing to have sex and usually asks me. But I just am not excited over her anymore.

At 28, I don't feel that I've given the best to what could be wrong?

Confused,
Mr. Paul Mass

Dear Confused: The housekeeping is a little perhaps is missing in the both of you is not responsible for your problem, to give much thought.

It sounds to me like normal neglect has entered and along with it, interpersonal communication.

The slipping of everything in marriage has ended your feelings of love for her. I recommend that you both get seated back, ignored, respect, respect and understanding.

There is a realistic problem that can be dealt with. Why both of you working together to remember the beginnings, a rewarding reward the will most return.

Should I get pregnant again?

Dear Babs: My husband and I are both 32 and have been married for three years. We have been hoping and praying for a baby and were even thinking of adoption.

I think I got pregnant and we were thrilled. But a few weeks ago I had a miscarriage.

Now I cry a lot, and feel real down. My husband doesn't understand my emotions and says we both become about this period and whatever.

I'm afraid if I get pregnant again that the same thing will happen and I would not stand the disappointment. My husband and I spend much other more money here we don't seem to know what to do to cope the pain.

Have you ever gone through and being pregnant and miscarriage?

I'm 15 and afraid of a week with him

Dear Babs: I'm 15 years old and I'm going with a guy nearly 18.

He wants me to go away for a week with him and I am afraid that it might be the wrong thing.

I really want to go but I'm afraid of what might happen. Would this trip hurt me? What should I do?

I'm afraid that he will get mad at me and find himself another girlfriend if I don't take this trip with him.

Afraid.
Salem, Oreg.

Dear Afraid: The fear you feel is your own self giving you some sound advice. I recommend that you heed it!

Tell your boyfriend that you will not go.

There's plenty of time for this kind of thing when you are older and more able to handle the consequences.

Once you've said no, you'll be glad you did.

and his wife Nancy, a medium, to find their home of the curse of the ghosts.

"There were so many ghosts there," said Nancy of Chester, Conn. "We made contact with seven of them — more than we have ever encountered in a single home before.

"But, more frightening than the earthbound spirits were the negative energy forces.

"We have never met a run up against anything as powerful," added Roger.

Apparently, they are the result of the black magic that was practiced at that house about 50 years ago. The inhabitants invoking the powers of evil.

"What exists in this house is the force of darkness. After I talked with the ghosts through Nancy and we banished the earthbound spirits, this entity of negative energy came up in the array mode.

"The best way to describe the force is like a cesspool that lies in the pit of your stomach. The atmosphere is so heavy that you can't walk through it — it's like you're walking up-stream against a strong current. There's a pressure pushing against you ... still pressing against you that feels like a fight the entity.

Her husband now sleeps on the couch and Karen guards the children.

"I'm at the end of my rope," Karen said. "I just don't know how much longer we can stay here."

Brave pooch's 12,000-mile adventure

Sam, a Bale pooch of doubtful heritage, wriggled happily in his overjoyed owners' arms when the two were finally reunited after a three-month adventure that started halfway around the world.

Many of the details of Sam's plight may never be known but it was amazing luck and the persistence of a dedicated animal lover that made the happy ending possible.

"He is now back with me and that's all that matters," Sam's 10-year old owner, Jaylynn Stevens, told the NEWS. "When Sam was lost I was heartbroken. I didn't believe I would ever see him again."

What happened in little Sam's absence is a story that began when the Stevens family got orders to transfer from a military base in Oklahoma, largest of Europe's southern-most airbase in Pope Air Force Base just outside Fayetteville, N.C.

Sam was loaded aboard a jet as air freight for the trip to North Carolina.

On a stopover at Chicago's O'Hare International Airport, Sam got out of his cage and went for a stroll.

Twenty six days later the lit the dog was found — dirty and half-starved — by police.

The heartwarming saga starts when the pooch wound up in an adoption center and the two-month search for his owners began.

After a number of dead-end leads, Ruth Ormsbee of the animal shelter, finally traced Sam's dog tag numbers to the military base in Oklahoma.

With information from military officers there, Ruth got in touch with an amazed and happy Stevens family.

Finally Sam made a homec

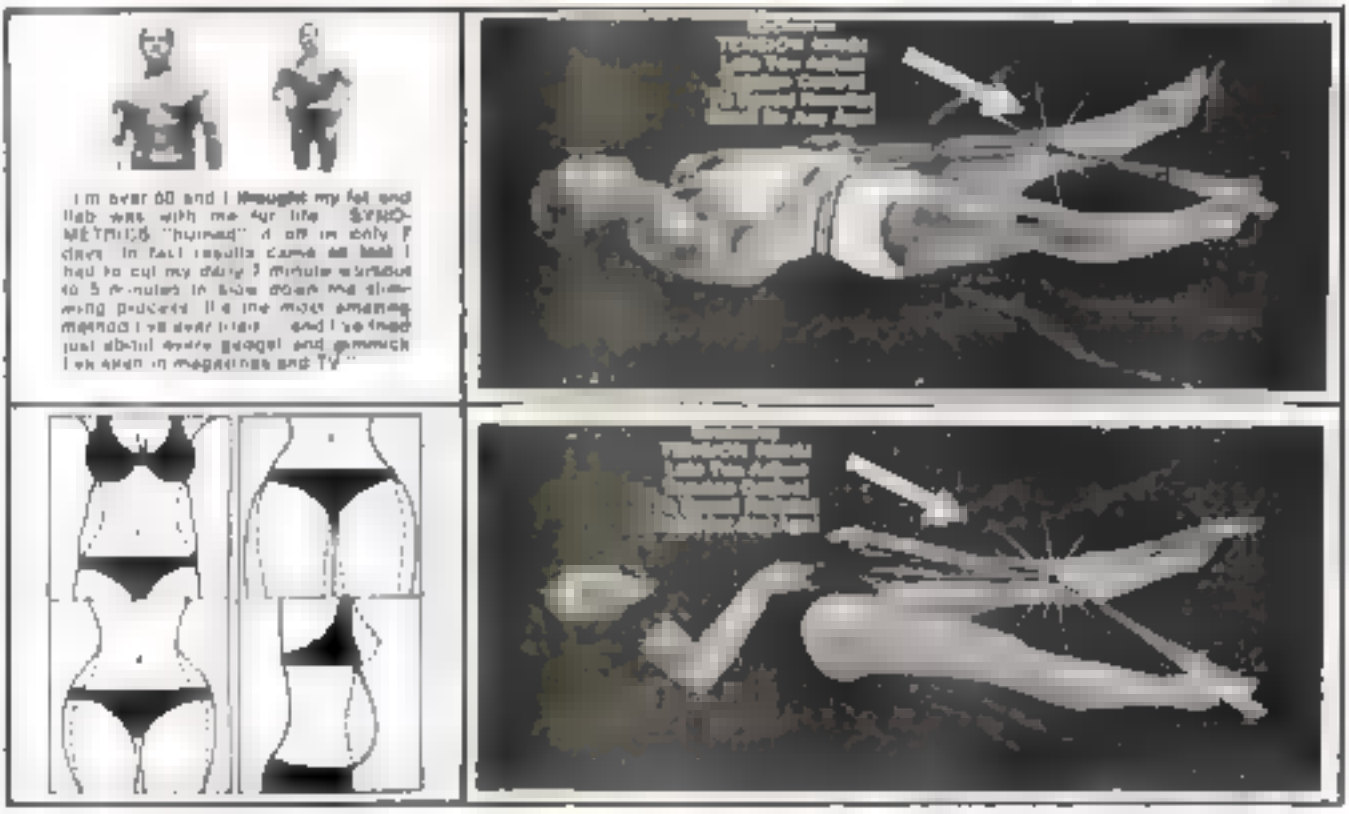
Turn Belly Fat into a Rock-Hard Lean Stomach

with the amazing Speed Shaper



I'm over 60 and I thought my fat and flab was with me for life. SYNOMETRICS "burned" it off in only 7 days. In fact results came so fast I had to cut my daily 7 minute workout to 5 minutes to slow down the slimming process. It's the most amazing method I've ever tried ... and I've tried just about every gadget and gimmick I've seen in magazines and TV.

IN JUST 7 SHORT MINUTES A DAY with the "miracle" of SYNOMETRICS (scientific concept of ISOMETRIC + ISOTONIC) ...the fantastic new discovery for speed shaping away ugly, embarrassing fat and flab...to reveal a brand new rock-hard, lean, trim, handsome body!

IKE BERGER explains SYNOMETRICS™...the new EASY speed method for figure beauty

What is SYNOMETRICS? You've probably heard about the isotonic and isometric principle of body dynamics for years. Each method has its own believers and supporters. I used BOTH methods in my daily training. Finally, I developed a special exercise unit that employed BOTH methods AT THE SAME TIME in one device. The effect was simply amazing. I was able to keep in trim, slim shape in only a fraction of the time I previously needed!

The Science of SYNOMETRICS

Later learned the scientific reason for this amazing result. It's called SYNERGISM—meaning that when you combine two methods the result is greater than the both of them separately. I now called my new discovery SYNOMETRICS and developed a special exercise unit I call the SPEED SHAPER. And that's just what it is ... a speed method to give you results in minutes, NOT hours! Now ...build yourself a "fantastic looking body" with the incredible SYNOMETRICS – the invention that works on the exciting new scientific concept of ISOTONIC + ISOMETRIC.

What is the SPEED SHAPER?

Ingeniously designed, in an amazingly compact slimming & shaping discovery. • No appointments needed • Adjust tension to your own needs, for any age • Slip into pocket or purse (5 oz.)—fits anywhere!

MUST TAKE 30 Days MONEY BACK GUARANTEE

In just a few days you must actually begin to see measurable, real results ... or your money back promptly and without any question.

*No diet needed. 7 daily calorie intake does not add to your present body weight.

Lovebirds

These two lovebirds symbolize all the tenderness, devotion, and — a pair of parakeets — pet dropping and cooking

My sis says her bald parakeet is trying to imitate her nudie hubby

PET TALK

By B.M. BROWN

Do you have a problem with your pet? Write to Pet Talk, Weekly World News, Lantana, Fla. 33462

Dear Pet Talk: My sister's parakeet looks like a penguin because he has only fat flightfeathers. Otherwise he's body is all bald. We don't want to tell her, but I don't see how anyone is going to get pregnant by a bird who looks like a penguin.

Name Withheld,
New York, N.Y.

Dear Name Withheld: Maybe your sister's parakeet is a nudist. Perhaps you should tell her husband, although your sister may be part of it.

This little budgie needs an adult entertainment as he runs out — and that doesn't include watching your brother-in-law walk by there in the altogether. He needs lots of cage exercise. He should have been sold a swing or two for his cage. Get a parakeet companion to munch the more unnecessary calories off his bird bottom.

Tell your sis to save those feathers the budgie used molt. She's given birth quite a few times, and growers on an orange juice every weekday. He should have a ramp home in his cage and an occasional egg beater from the pet shop, which may also supply the vitamin supplement he should be getting during this period of stress.

Your relatives should be doing everything they can to get brother's head on their collective nude parakeet.

Persian cats cost too much

Dear Pet Talk: I am getting tired of a Persian cat. I love them so much. I think Persians make great pets and I love them, but I'm embarrassed to tell others I'm selling or giving away a Persian cat.

I've tried all kinds of weird shelters, but I've had no luck and pet shops charge too much money. But I assure you, I'd take really good care of it and that's what counts. I don't care what color it is. I just want a Persian cat.

Persian Delight,
Bronx, N.Y.

Dear Persian Delight: Anyone who loves a particular breed of cat as much as you do, deserves kindness in their life. Unfortunately, our legal reasons, Pet Talk isn't equipped to be an adoption agency.

Your best bet is to continue to inquire normal shelters as you did. If a Persian does arrive there, the shelter will give you a call. The pet classified ads in The New York Times are usually filled with listings for adoptions, too, when the owner is sick or moving away. This is also where you can find out who's offering Persian cats for sale. (Bird is trade with the breeder. Perhaps she'll welcome your little help in the nursery. Most Persians can be had cheap, and breeders may be willing to give their kittens away to a loving home.

Tip with the new year you'll experience each day with a song on your heart and love to spread wherever you go.

SAGITTARIUS

Nov. 22-Dec. 21

You're on top over the holidays you long for a day of frolic and to the point of a self-centered fashion, Sagittarius.

If you're single you may suddenly get a call from someone you've been thinking about a long time or you may get the nerve to make the call yourself and the object of your affection can't wait to see you at your favorite. Sagg!

CAPRICORN

Dec. 22-Jan. 19

Your calendar is so full with activities you may just stopping about all you have scheduled for the holidays and that Lady Luck & Social Event have also done that you anticipated will be kind of a fruitful business situation.

And on top of all the holiday festivities, love abounds and relationship with your mate is especially warm and wonderful. Enjoy!

AQUARIUS

Jan. 20-Feb. 18

Your high energy level is all that saves you from sheer exhaustion but fortunately, the more you do the more you want to keep going, Aquarius. Your naughty personality is in full flower and you're a delight to everyone lucky enough to be around you.

By week's end, you may try to escape for a brief respite. However you have many urged to escape with you.

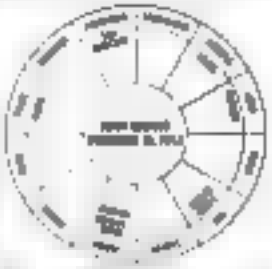
This week's birthday

JOHN DENVER
DEC. 31, 1943
CAPRICORN



John Denver was the singer songwriter and actor with the long hair and glasses who would be 38 this week. He was born Henry John Deutschendorf in Roswell, N. Mex. under the auspices of Capricorn.

As a Capricorn he loves both big city life and natural splendor which brings him to Aspen, Colo. where he lives with his wife Annie and children. He started out playing folk music in coffeehouses and clubs in Los Angeles and San Francisco. He was the first artist to record a John Denver song, "Take Me Home, Country Roads," which was a big hit for him.

With Denver planets in Gemini, he is a musician at heart. He loves to travel and thrive on the contact he has with his audiences. He is a good communicator who knows how to use his talents to get what he wants.

Denver's Moon is in Pisces making him sensitive to social issues and Neptune in Libra gives him a slight experience of hallucinations. Artistically his heart is always filled for the big city life with the peaceful outlook and beautiful influences.

He's not afraid to live his life with style and entertainment because he loves the spotlight. He is not afraid to live alone in the woods either, which is probably why he chose to live in Aspen.

Astro Match Ups

By Skip Frishing

Sagittarius male — Aquarius female

The Match Up is a one stop roller coaster ride and it's across a game with the most unpredictable — the Sagittarian male or the Aquarian female. You never know what to expect from either of them. They'll shock, rattle and unsettle you occasionally and then leave right around and please a total stranger by being good friends to all visits group.

Seldom do they allow others to influence their decisions and they rarely do anything by the book. They have a knack for thinking the unique is mundane and complicated is exciting. The easy way leaves them. The rough way is the full route.

Neither expresses deep feelings easily or often. They may make a habit to hold their deepest and greatest feelings that run deep for a wealth experience. Who's playing busy.

But they both have unbridled desires to do what every things. Sagg is the most joke loving upside down at an air show. He's the fellow who will fly over the South Pole.

They'll spend their vacations dangerously close to a live volcano or rafting lakes in the dead of winter.

There's little stability in this relationship. Their bad traits are one plus and their good ones provide more excitement than sense.

This Match Up only ranks higher on a possible 144 combinations.

Experts fear flu epidemic will strike from outer space

By JOE BERGER

A deadly deluge of germs from outer space could rain down on the Earth this winter causing a flu outbreak that will kill millions.

That is the fear of experts who have studied worldwide flu epidemics that spread death and illness with alarming regularity during this century.

Some researchers predict that the coming disaster could equal the disastrous epidemic of 1918 that killed 30 million people and made 500 million people sick.

"We're really overdue for a major epidemic and I am certain it's coming," Sir Fred Hoyle, a leading British scientist and university professor, told The NEWS.

"And when it comes, it could be very, very bad. We can hope that it's not so severe, but by all means we should try to be prepared."

Hoyle and another top British space expert, Prof. Chandra Wickramasinghe, said the viruses that unleash the most horrible flu outbreaks are created in outer space.

They said clouds of deadly virus particles are sent earthward by comets as they swirl past the Earth. The virus clouds collide with our atmosphere, then sift slowly toward the Earth.

"We have a major epidemic every decade or so, and that's just how long it takes for something to penetrate thoroughly through the atmosphere," Hoyle said.

"We haven't had a bad outbreak since 1968 and it's overdue likely that one is coming."

The other viruses fall over the Earth in parcels, explaining why the disease strikes in random pockets, the experts said.

Other scientists doubt that new ghastly germs originate in space, but even they predict that a killer outbreak will soon be upon us.

"I'm convinced the flu virus is a very mobile being, but the thing that's waiting around the corner could be just as devastating as anything that we have mutated in space," said a well-known Australian specialist, Dr. Ralph Durkee.

"There is no good in predicting, but I think we have to be very much on guard."

Dr. Durkee and some other experts believe the most ravaging epidemics come every decade because of major changes in the deadly Type A virus.

Those changes or mutations take refuge in animals like horses and pigs between epidemics, Durkee said. "The mutations occur as the virus passes through the animals time and again."

The disastrous 1918 epidemic struck at a time when the world was ravaged by famine and millions were starving and homeless.

Frantic doctors say those conditions are even more severe today.

"There are millions of people in developing countries and even in countries like America, who are just as vulnerable as people were in 1918," said one specialist.

"Even with our antibiotics and our knowledge, we likely still be able to put up much of a fight.

"The world could be in for a real disaster."

Killer germs can rain down on Earth from tails of fiery comets

Housewife gets $366 in groceries — for coupons

Housewife Peggy Nichols just recently bought $366.66 worth of groceries for $60 — thanks to refund offers and coupons — she didn't pay the cashier a cent.

In fact, when the coupons were all totaled the cashier owed her $42.81.

The Odessa, Tex., housewife, who has been couponing for only a year, offers these tips for shoppers who want to find out the new real saving interest of spending.

- Buy a quantity when the price is right.
- Whenever possible choose a store that offers to double the value of cents-off coupons. This makes a 20-cent coupon worth 40 cents.
- Save all personal income refunds, as you will have them when there is a refund offer made on them.
- Let all your friends and relatives know you want their used and unwanted coupons. You can't get too many and there is sure them for you.
- Most important don't become discouraged. It takes a few months to get the hang of doing. Here are some new refund offers.

TV's stars reveal their surprising secret ambitions

Many of TV's top stars harbor secret ambitions and gave surprising answers to the question: What would you like to be if you hadn't become an actor?

Starling Lynn Anderson of "WKRP in Cincinnati" is sometimes sorry that she became a model and actress instead of pursuing her courses as an art major at the University of Minnesota.

"If I wasn't acting, I would like to teach art in college," said TV's blonde bombshell.

By KITTY Aldridge

"Love Boat's" darling Bernie Kopell thinks that professional athletes have it made. Since tennis is his favorite sport, Bernie wishes he had made that extra effort when he was younger so he might go pro on the courts.

Pretty Melissa Gilbert, of "Little House on the Prairie," is only 18 and has a chance to make her dream profession come true.

"My unfulfilled ambition is to be a director," she revealed. "My immediate goals are to continue my education.

"I recently graduated high school and hope to attend the University of Southern California or U.C.L.A. next year."

Magnum's street-wise sidekick Larry Manetti has already branched out into the second career he dreams about.

"I would love to be a highly successful partner in a real estate investment company," he said.

"In fact, I am a partner in a construction company in Chicago that renovates brownstones and if I weren't acting I'd love to devote my full attention to it and manage it as well.

"Granted, American Born's best gal Connie Sellecca is a mystery freak and loves to find out who did it.

"If I wasn't an actress, I would like to be a private detective," she said.

"I'm very good at detective work and solving my people's problems working for me when I suspected a missing penny from my purse.

"What I did was set up four surveillance around the apartment with certain amounts of money in each hoping to catch her in the act.

"Sure enough, I caught her and fired her."

Susan Jennifer Haywood of "Three's Company" is fascinated by the big money deals of the business world.

"My secret ambition is to get involved in real estate," she said. "Not to make money, but for the wheeling and dealing.

"I see myself in a penthouse in Hollywood with a beautiful real estate office on Rodeo Drive in Beverly Hills."

"Dallas" star Jarred Stanton, who plays the aunt who stole the heart of J.R.'s wife, is intrigued by the world of journalism.

"If I wasn't acting, I would like to have been a journalist," he said.

"In between my acting jobs in New York, I worked as a copyboy at the New York Times and I also wrote reviews for the book section."

Luscious Phyllis Davis, who starred on the recently cancelled "Vegas," has a lifelong secret ambition — especially for such a sexy doll.

"If I hadn't gotten involved in acting, I would like to have joined my family's mortuary business and become a mortician.

"I was brought up in a mortuary — but I thought it was a dying business.

Chris Robinson, who plays heartthrob Dr. Rick Ramsey on daytime TV's top-rated soap "General Hospital," has a challenging hobby that he'd like to make into a new career if acting fails through.

"If I weren't in the acting profession, I would like to be an archeologist," said Chris.

"As it is, I spend all my time exploring New Mexico and Arizona for places to dig."

Before she became a model and an actress, Lynn Anderson — shown here in the TV movie "Sizzle" — was an art major at the University of Minnesota. Her current dream is to be an art professor.

"Ballet" lover Jarred Martin thinks being a big-time manager would be an interesting job.

Sweet Melissa Gilbert is currently planning a second career as a lady director.

Bernie Kopell is a real "private" in the ladies on "Love Boat." But he still wishes he could have been a tennis pro.

Jolly dentist Jim Gover plans to be around hundreds of years after he's dead

'My ashes will have fun,' he says

By JOE BERGER

When Dr. Jim Gover dies, he won't be going anywhere — he'll be spicing up the lives of relatives and showing up at meetings of his Rotary Club for hundreds of years to come!

The wealthy happy-go-lucky dentist has set up a lavish trust fund to ensure that the strange brass urn bearing his ashes gets first-class care and procedural display — forever. And what's more, he's directed that the ashes be taken to all his school reunions and the meetings of social clubs he belongs to.

"This is my way of celebrating death, but it's more than that," Jim, 66, told The NEWS.

"It's also my way of bringing joy to others. As a dentist, I don't get to spend a lot of time bringing happiness to other people.

Under his incredible plan, the Naples, Fla., man's ashes will be inhaled from one relative to another every three months.

"And I don't want them to stash my urn away in a drawer or an attic or somewhere," he said. "I want it where it'll be seen — on the TV in the mornin'."

The lucky ones will pay $500 a month to whichever descendant has Jim's remains at the time.

"This is money that's to be spent on something foolish — not the mortgage or the car payment, but a night on the town, a vacation, something fun," said the father of two married sons.

"That's what I wanna share my money for tonight."

The never-say-die Gover didn't settle for just any old urn, either. Because he loves music, he hired a sculptor to design him a final resting place in the shape of his face, a mold of his hands on a console and his own Rotarian regalia on the side.

"Years from now, I want them to know who that Uncle Jim was and what he looked like," he said.

Beside the urn, with his ashes, Jim will have miniature examples of the things closest to his heart — a six-pack of beer, a rifle, a motorcycle, a toothbrush, a tuba and a beautiful dark-haired woman.

And the vessel also bears an inscription: "He Who Dies Laughs The Most Is Known as Wealth Is Forever Earned To Post Oral Health." As part of his design for immortality, Jim plans a funeral with a Dixieland band and enough liquor to get all the mourners drunk. And he wants to use the urn for a similar wake every year — for eternity.

"I guess that will be the time for me to buy beer for all the people I owe drinks to," he said.

And that's a lot of beer.

Jim says up will go from a home after serving his grave-ity in Tether.

Jim hopes his ashtrait urn will be a contender to take over the one that sits at short.

The urn is shaped like a piano and will contain tiny objects — including an impression of Jim Gover's teeth.

This bronze impression of his face will go into Jim Gover's urn — along with tiny replicas of the things he loves most in life.
